CHARLES TO TAKE THRONE BY FORCE

START MOVE FOR PEACE NEGOTIATIONS BETWEEN BRITAIN AND IRELAND

Church Official Approached by Southern Unionists Who Seek Parley Between Irish Parliament and British Government

BELFAST.—(By the Associated Press.)—Cardinal Logue, primate of Ireland, was interviewed Tuesday by Sir William Goulding and three other southern Irish unionists, with the object, it is understood, of securing the opening of peace negotiations between the Irish republican parliament and the British government.

The interview took place at Dundalk, County Louth.

Sir William Goulding is a prominent Irish railwayman, a resident of Dublin. He is chairman of the Great Southern and Western Railway of Ireland, and of the Irish Railway Clearing-house.

He was a member of the Irish convention of 1917-18 and is a former high sheriff of the county of Dublin.

BENTLEY DELIVERS FIRST STUMP SPEECH IN MAYORALTY FIGHT

Talk at Kabat's Hall Given Before Crowd He Estimates at 400 to 500

LAYS EMPHASIS ON FOWLER VOTE ON WAR REFERENDUM

Reiterates Principal Points Given in "Declaration of Purpose"

The first stump-speech of the municipal campaign was staged on Wednesday evening by Mayor Bentley, in Kabat's hall at Tenth and Hood streets. Discussing the meeting on Thursday morning the mayor estimated his crowd at between 400 and 500 people.

A similar meeting will be held Friday evening at Bohemian hall, Mr. Bentley announced.

Mayor Bentley laid chief emphasis in his talk upon the vote of Assemblyman Fowler, his opponent, on the resolution introduced in the assembly last week by Schaefer, Milwaukee socialist, memorializing congress to call for a referendum on future wars. The mayor said:

Regarding Fowler Vote

"Colonel Fowler says on his cards that he is opposed to militarism. He had a splendid opportunity offered him on March 25 in the assembly, when he had the chance to vote on the Schaefer resolution which was lost by a vote of 45 to 39. Colonel Fowler voting against the resolution. The Schaefer resolution required the conscription of capital to pay war debts and for a referendum on future wars. 'I am very much opposed to a resolution of this kind,' said Colonel Fowler. 'I don't believe in hampering or hamstringing the government. One great step was made in the last war in the conscription of men.'

"It appears that the colonel is willing to draft our boys to fight the next war but is not willing to draft capital to pay for it which, if it was done, making wars unprofitable, would be the greatest influence known to eliminate wars."

Plans for New Schools

The mayor also discussed the plans for two new school buildings, saying:

"The mayor and council have done more to provide jobs for men in La Crosse in letting the contracts for the construction of two schools than is generally known. A bidder from St. Paul whose bid was irregular was somewhat lower than any other bidder. He was to bring his own crew with him and it was reported that his crew were seasoned advocates of the 'open shop' policy.

"I make no apology for ruling his bid out of order in the council and awarding the contract for the construction of the schools to a local contractor who will furnish employment for a whole year for about 150 La Crosse men, at living wages, without the embarrassing opposition usually shown to paying the established union scale.

Would Keep Money Here

"This I claim was actually furnishing work for men. It also means that approximately $300,000 in wages will be kept in La Crosse instead of going elsewhere. The $167,500 saved by the delay of six months in letting these contracts, I propose, if re-elected, to use as soon as practicable to repair, remodel and make safe and up-to-date the several ward schools, located in this and other outlying sections of the city."

The mayor also said that in his speeches he intended to elaborate on his "declaration of purpose," made public several days ago, and that he would stick to that document in his campaign.

Regarding the offices of mayor and aldermen, Mr. Bentley said:

"Under the non-partisan law, no alderman or the mayor is pledged before election to do anything for anybody; he has no strings tied to him. At the same time no alderman nor the mayor can escape the consequences for his acts at the hands of the people."

On the assessment question, Mr. Bentley declared "the printing of the assessment list in book form is the road to the perfectly assessed city. I believe the people are the best assessors, the most expert in that line. The printed list gives them a chance to pick flaws in assessment and to have the levies against property adjusted."

BENTLEY'S BUNGLING WITH SCHOOLS COST CITY OVER $200,000

Alderman Mahoney Comments on Mayor's Claims in Campaign Speech

NOT HE BUT COUNCIL KEPT CONTRACT IN CITY

Delay and Opposition Ran Cost of Schools up $300,000

THAT Mayor Bentley's "bungling and delays" in connection with school buildings has cost the taxpayers of the city between $200,000 and $300,000, was the assertion today of Alderman Paul W. Mahoney, commenting upon reports of a campaign speech of Bentley's last night in which the latter sought to create the impression that his "bucking" of the school proposition saved money.

"I understand that Mayor Bentley claimed the credit for the rejection of the St. Paul contractor's bid for school construction, intimating it was part of a little scheme of his to get 'jobs for men' in La Crosse," said Mr. Mahoney. "The fact is the council voted to reject the St. Paul bid after I had raised the legal point that the bid was not accompanied by the bond or fifteen per cent cash deposit required by the charter provision. The mayor had absolutely nothing to say or influence to wield on the proposition—the council was responsible."

Actual Loss on Interest

Mr. Mahoney, in denying the mayor's right to pose as an economy official, said that last spring the bid for construction of the north side high school was $28,300 higher than this spring and that the bid on the Washburn school was approximately $10,000 higher. In round numbers this would appear to mean a saving of $28,000 by delaying the work, he said.

"It must be remembered," said Mr. Mahoney, "that we are now compelled to pay six per cent on our bonds whereas we could have sold them last spring for five per cent. In round numbers it is proposed to spend $400,000 on schools. The interest on $400,000 at five per cent is $20,000. At 6 per cent it is $24,000.

"This means that in interest alone the city of La Crosse will lose $4,000 a year for the next twenty years—the life of the bonds—or a total loss of $80,000. All of which is due to Mayor Bentley's opposition to construction last spring.

"In addition there are 250 north side students who daily pay ten cents carfare to get to school. Failure to build last summer means carfare for 200 school days or an additional loss of $10,000 to north side people.

Total Loss Over $200,000

"Furthermore, had Mayor Bentley gone ahead with the plans for the north side high school in March, 1917, when the bid was $31,000 he would have saved the city $171,000. If he had even accepted the July, 1917, bid, which was $45,000, he would have saved the citizens $157,000.

"Totalling these losses one finds that Bentley's bungling and delays mean a loss of between $200,000 and $300,000 to the taxpayers."

NAME OF WEBSTER IS RESUBMITTED TO SENATE BY BLAINE

Sends Nomination Back Despite Refusal of Senate to Confirm Appointment

GOVERNOR TAKES EXCEPTION TO ACTION OF THE SENATE

Party Affiliation Declared Not Necessary to Public Service

MADISON, Wis.—The name of Brayton O. Webster was again submitted to the senate for confirmation as a member of the conservation commission to replace James Nevin, by Governor John J. Blaine Thursday morning. Confirmation was refused by the upper house Wednesday morning by a vote of 15 to 11.

The governor takes exception to the decision of the senate, made upon the assumption that he had violated a statute in appointing Webster, who it held was a republican. Statutory provision stipulates that not more than two members of the commission may be of the same political party.

"Judging from the record made by a majority of the senate it appears that the majority lost sight of the fact that the great mass of independent thinkers and voters who think and vote independently never were intended to be excluded from serving their state," the governor declared in his statement accompanying the nomination.

"It is unthinkable to believe that party affiliation is necessary for public service," he said, "and I repeat that the statute does not provide that the members of the commission must belong to any party."

The governor said that the statute referred to by the senate does not recognize any political party, nor does it qualify a man from serving on the commission if he belongs to no political party.

In his statement, the governor says that "the statute is designed to permit a man to serve on the commission who may be independent politically, who supports candidates and principles quite regardless of party, and who may support candidates on different tickets at the same election or different elections."

LIZZIE FORD IS GLAD SHE BELONGS TO RESCUE MISSION

Dear Friends:—

I am the second-hand Ford you helped to buy for the Rescue Mission. Some folks say that I am the Noisome Pestilence spoken of in Psalm 91. Anyway I know I'll like my new job. Some job it is, believe me. I'll go to the hospitals, jails, courts, funerals, homes, churches and if some people on the boulevard had their way, I would go to a place too hot to mention.

You want to watch me as I gather up old clothes and shoes to be made over and given to the poor.

Gee, but I'll have a great time Thanksgiving and Christmas as I gather good things and distribute them to mothers and children in need. And then I'll have a good time this summer taking tired mothers and their families to the "Kiddie" camp.

Well you can tell the world I had rather be a Ford and work for the Rescue Mission than be a Packard and dwell in the tents of the wicked. So Long.

INSPIRING LECTURE HEARD AT CHAMBER OF COMMERCE FEAST

Johnson Tells of Five American Characteristics Necessary to Success of Community

Mentions Loss to City Should Tractor Company Move

DECLARING enthusiasm, ambition, optimism, efficiency and service to be the five great characteristics of the American people without the incorporation of which no community or people or business establishment can be successful, C. E. Johnson, hardware man of Rush City, Minn., gave one of the most inspiring lectures ever heard in the city at the meeting of the Chamber of commerce Wednesday night. The gathering was favored with two vocal selections by H. W. Hirshheimer.

Mr. Johnson won the admiration of the local people as a public speaker during the drive for the fifth Liberty loan here, and his lecture, "The Road to Happiness," Wednesday night at the Chamber of Commerce dinner was received with hearty applause by everyone present.

During the course of his lecture Mr. Johnson referred several times to the probability of the La Crosse Tractor company leaving the city to establish its new plant at Oshkosh. In a manner which moved the president of the Chamber of Commerce to state that new steps would be taken to save the plant for La Crosse, Mr. Johnson declared that the city could establish it if the people would realize the subsequent loss should the Tractor company establish itself elsewhere.

Must Be Enthusiastic

"One of the great American ideas is enthusiasm. With enthusiasm centralized, localized and in cooperation with ambition, there is no limit to success," declared the speaker. Mr. Johnson stated that the mental attitude of a people had much to do with their success and happiness. The cause for America's victory in the recent war was due to the fact that no person in the country or in the service of the country expected anything but victory. He advocated an optimistic train of mind, adding that this is one of the foremost characteristics of the American people.

"In dealing with the American characteristics, efficiency and service," Mr. Johnson stated that trouble existed among the people of this country because of everyone having a desire to rule, with no one to serve. "There is a selfishness in our everyday life that must be forgotten. We must unite for a definite purpose and become accustomed to doing things ourselves. The trouble in America now is that people are not doing their duty as citizens and are not aware of the individual responsibility for our environment. We must get down and serve others for it is impossible to get more out of a community than you put in."

Fight For Happiness

Mr. Johnson stated that the United States advertised itself as being the greatest country in the world, with the result that thousands flocked into the country for the purpose of taking advantage of the homestead act. Through the spirit of happiness these people have made a success here, he said. The speaker dwelt at length on the necessity of fighting for the future happiness of the coming generation, urging all to acquire an enthusiastic and optimistic spirit and put up a strong and wholehearted fight for happiness.

In closing the speaker told of the sacrifice and unselfishness displayed by the American people in contributing all of the characteristics of America's success to the winning of the war. "We paid in the loss of life but we gained in making that sacrifice for the restoration of happiness among the peoples involved in the war."

CHURCH DIGNITARIES AT BALTIMORE FOR FUNERAL OF CARDINAL GIBBONS

New Effort On To Save Tractor Plant For City

A NEW effort is under way to save the tractor company for La Crosse.

Following the meeting at the Chamber of Commerce Wednesday evening, at which C. E. Johnson spoke, President MacWillie of the Chamber announced that he would call upon the members of the organization for a final effort to keep the big plant from moving to Oshkosh. Before the meeting started Mr. MacWillie reported that the first campaign to raise the fund necessary to purchase the tractor plant had raised $68,000.

"I have to tell you," he said, "that the tractor plant closed last Saturday, throwing some 160 men out of employment. I received word from Oshkosh today that they are making the drive for the last $50,000 of the $650,000 fund they need this week, and expect to close is successfully. The Chamber of Commerce is doing all that it can to keep the plant here, but I feel that the city is entitled to this report."

Mr. Johnson, during his talk, said that the La Crosse Tractor is known to the trade throughout the United States as one of the ten successful tractors on the market. He said that La Crosse was losing much more than it realized if the concern left the city. "I know," he said, "because the tractor business is my business."

Mr. Johnson was formerly president of the National Implement Dealers' association, and is at present at the head of the machinery department of the Minnesota State Fair, where annually over eighty-six acres of farm machinery is exhibited.

Mr. MacWillie announced on Thursday morning that a committee of leading business men was working again on the tractor proposition. He offered no information as to the method being pursued or the prospects of success.

PIONEER RESIDENT OF WEST SALEM DIES SUDDENLY MONDAY

MARTIN MAC ELDOWNEY, age 64 and pioneer in this vicinity, died suddenly at his home in West Salem on Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

Mr. MacEldowney, although an invalid for several years, was able to be about having been seen around in his usual health on the day of his death. W. A. Bradley, a friend of the family, had visited the MacEldowney household on Monday evening.

Sitting in his favorite chair as was his custom at that hour of the day, members of the family were not aware of the death of Mr. MacEldowney until one of his grandchildren, seeing him in the chair, ran to his side to say "good night" before retiring. Alarmed when no answer was received, the child hastened to inform the other members of the family in another room.

Born on a farm north of the village, Mr. MacEldowney has remained in that vicinity throughout his life, the family being among the earlier settlers in this section. Mr. and Mrs. MacEldowney last week celebrated their thirty-eighth wedding anniversary. He was a deacon in the Federated church and one of the most esteemed residents of the village.

The funeral was held from the church at 2:30 Thursday afternoon, the Rev. S. R. Davis officiating. Interment was made in Neshonoc cemetery.

This is the first time such recognition has been extended by the state since civil war days.

Both houses of the legislature by a rising vote adopted a resolution eulogizing the man who worked with them in solving problems of legislation, and providing for the reception of the body in the state house. The funeral will be held Saturday.

GATHERING NOTABLE ONE IN ANNALS OF CHURCH IN AMERICA

Highest Honors in Gift of Roman Catholic Church Paid to Dead Prelate

GREGORIAN MUSIC SUNG HERE FOR FIRST TIME

Last Rites for Baltimore Churchman Impressive Spectacle

BALTIMORE, Md. — With all the splendor of a ceremony centuries old, the Roman Catholic church Thursday laid to rest one of its oldest and most faithful servants—James Cardinal Gibbons, archbishop of Baltimore and the second American elevated to the cardinalate.

Archbishop John Bonzano, apostolic delegate at Washington celebrated a pontifical high mass in the cathedral of the Blessed Virgin Mary, with Seminarians chanting Gregorian music never before heard outside the Sistine chapel in Rome during a funeral of a pope.

Archbishop J. J. Glennon of St. Louis delivered the funeral sermon. During his eulogy of the dead there remained scarcely a dry eye among his hearers.

Service is Impressive

The service was like a scene from the middle ages. Numberless priests in a seemingly endless procession filed into the church and in their stately robes of varied colors, moved forward to the catafalque on which rested the late cardinal in his archbishop's vestments of purple. In a few moments the body of the church was filled with this army of clergy and the atmosphere of the twentieth centur was dispelled.

There was a harmony of color and sound as the light of the candles around the bier fell on the brilliant ceremonial robes of the priests and the auditorium echoed to the measured rythm of the chanted prayers.

Expresses Nation, Sorrow

Giving expression to what he called the "voiceless sorrow of a nation in mourning" Archbishop Glennon in the funeral sermon recalled the well loved characteristics of the cardinal "whose coming was a joy," he said "whose presence was a benediction."

Though Cardinal Gibbons was at once "leader, guide and father," the archbishop said, the departed prince of the church was more to be remembered as "the kindly, gentle old man."

"We cannot forget his unfailing kindness his prudent counsel. We fear and we feel we shall not look on his like again."

"The salient traits of the illustrious dead," the archbishop named in order,

"He was a great leader and soldier whose sword was ever ready to defend the Christ and His Kingdom. He was the great legislator, wise in counsel, prudent in action, just in his decisions. He was the far visioned educator who would have the world know Christ was the truth and the life. Lastly, he was the great patriot."

The crowd which surrounded the cathedral remained through occasional showers which drenched the streets.

Come From All Over Nation

The greatest assemblage of church dignitaries ever massed on this continent are gathered here for the funeral of the Cardinal. They came from the east and the west, from the north and the south, and from the dominion across the border, to mourn the prelate, the American, the man. In the great procession which formed for the pontifical requiem mass were numberless priests and the mitred heads of a hundred dioceses.

To the cathedral of the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary, on the heights overlooking the city of the cardinal's birth, came also, lay delegates and diplomats.

They came for a ceremonial unmatched in the ecclesiastical history of the United States, for in addition to all the honors, the Roman Catholic church in America could shower on a servant old and tried, there was bestowed upon the dead a special gift from the vatican. In special recognition of the American prelate's service to the church, the pope decreed that the Gregorian Choral society of St. Mary's seminary should sing at today's mass a solemn Gregorian chant previously heard only at the funeral of a sovereign ruler of the Catholic church in the Sistine chapel in Rome.

Thousands Throng Streets

By nine o'clock, an hour before the time for the ceremony, streets surrounding the cathedral were so crowded that not a square inch of pavement could be seen.

Early in the morning the clergy began forming opposite the cathedral for the processional.

It was an impressive spectacle. Regular clergy in the colors of their

LEHAR READY TO MARCH ON CAPITAL CITY

Proclaim Military Dictatorship in Hungary; Troops Declared Rallying to Support of Charles

REPORTS FROM HUNGARY ARE DECLARED WITHOUT FOUNDATION

Confirmation of Movement for Restoration of Charles is Lacking

VIENNA.—By The Associated Press.—It is unofficially reported here that Admiral Horthy, the Hungarian regent, has resigned and will let events take their course, but the report is not confirmed.

It also is reported that the former Emperor Charles is on the way to Budapest from the frontier. Further reports are that 100,000 men from the West Hungarian garrisons have rallied to the support of General Lehar.

STEINAMANGER, West Hungary.—via Budapest—noon.)—By The Associated Press.—Premier Teleky and Count Andrassy, former foreign minister, have been in debate a whole day here with former Emperor Charles on the conditions under which the latter would be willing to sign a formal abdication. It is said Charles is insisting that a stipulation of the validity of the claims of his son Otto shall be recognized and embodied in the Hungarian law.

VIENNA.—By The Associated Press.—Reports were received by various newspapers here Thursday that ex-Emperor Charles had proclaimed a military dictatorship at Steinamanger and that General Lehar was said to be ready at the head of 15,000 troops to march on Budapest and by force, if necessary, restore Charles to the throne.

LONDON.—By The Associated Press.—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Paris Thursday says it is reported a majority of the Hungarian troops have rallied to the standard of ex-Emperor Charles, who will march on Budapest.

There is no confirmation from other sources of the foregoing report that ex-Emperor Charles contemplates moving on Budapest. Direct advices from Hungary so far have not indicated any notable degree of support for the ex-ruler from army circles, although it was said that in stopping at Steinamanger on the Austrian frontier of Hungary, Charles had hopes of persuading the military forces there to support his desire for restoration.

Several army leaders who had appeared inclined to place themselves in the service of the former emperor were placed under arrest by Admiral Horthy, the regent, semi-official advices from Budapest Wednesday declared. It was first reported that General Lehar, who commands the Hungarian army forces at Steinamanger, was supporting the former monarch and would back his claim with the troops of the West Hungarian army but later advices asserted he was supporting Horthy against those who were plotting for the restoration of Charles.

General Belitzka, the Hungarian war minister, was quoted Wednesday as saying:

"The former king is not supported by the troops. The army as one man

WAUSAU ROTARIAN ELECTED GOVERNOR AT FARGO MEETING

Gets 1922 Convention; 25 Members of La Crosse Attend Gathering

FARGO.—Alfred Zimmerman, insurance man of Wausau, Wis., was elected governor of the fifteenth district of the International Association of Rotary clubs in session here. Twenty-five Rotarians from La Crosse are attending the convention. Mr. Zimmerman is a member of the board of directors of the Wausau Rotary club and was its first president. The nomination was made by Henry Pouran of Milwaukee and seconded by Paul F. Hunter, newspaperman of Madison. It was made unanimous by a vote and the convention under a suspension of the rules.

Resolutions submitted to the convention by Harry B. Braddock of Minneapolis, chairman of the committee on constitutions and bylaws, provide that the convention shall not approve the draft of the proposed constitution and bylaws to be submitted at the international convention in Edinburgh.

Few Constitutions Framed

The resolutions suggest that all delegates to this international convention from the fifteenth district "request and vote" that the adoption of the proposed constitution and bylaws be deferred for one year, or until the next international convention, in order that all Rotary clubs may have an opportunity to make a further study of the draft before its final adoption.

Mr. Braddock's reports showed that in practically no instance have the Rotary clubs of the fifteenth district as yet made any proposed constitutions and bylaws the order of business, either by special committees or by its membership.

The draft, according to the committee's report, is admittedly incomplete in several instances, namely regarding revenue, national assemblies and election.

1922 Conference at Duluth

Duluth will be the scene of the 1922 conference. That city was unanimously selected by the 900 delegates from Minnesota, North Dakota, Wisconsin and the upper peninsula of Michigan. All the larger cities in these states were well represented by delegations that attended in costumes.

Among the speakers were James H. Kaye of Marquette, Mich., governor of the conference, who urged better education; M. A. Brunnou, Beloit, Wis.; Wirt Wiley, Minneapolis, and Dr. Austin Olmstead, Green Bay, Wis., who spoke on the work among the boys. Minnesota men named the work among the crippled children in the state as the best work of their club.

The Interview Jane Didn't Get

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD

Jane Spaulding was trembling in her boots—brand-new boots, they were, too, of a very late and expensive cut. Her very fetching hat, new also, and her hitherto unworn five-dollar gloves did not stiffen her backbone appreciably. Yet to purchase them, in honor of this occasion, had well-nigh emptied her pocketbook.

For this interview was tremendously important to Jane. On it depended her success as a newspaper woman. The very instant she had been given the assignment to interview Morrison Phillips, lately returned from frozen seas, she knew that her opportunity had come. And rumor had it that Phillips' possessed of a shyness as colossal as his achievements, was refusing to be interviewed. In due course of time his report would no doubt be published, but by then the public would no longer be interested in what he ate for breakfast.

Three reporters on the "Telegram," to which Jane had been for some time ably contributing nuptial and obituary write-ups, had tried to see Phillips and failed. It would be a scoop for Jane as well as the "Telegram" to accomplish the impossible.

Consequently Jane was trembling as she felt her slim hand engulfed on masterful fingers and looked up into deep-set eyes placed far apart in a weathered face. Still, he was surprisingly young and his youth gave her confidence.

"Miss Spaulding of the 'Telegram,' I believe. Sit down." His voice, first, strong, matched his face, thought Jane as she sank into the chair he drew out for her opposite to his own, from which he had risen at her entrance. "And shall I begin how I was born in a little shanty on the Missouri and pored over books on Arctic travel by the light of pine knots?" His voice held a smile and Jane dimpled in response. He was not in the least formidable.

"Not yet," she answered. Then: "What struck you most forcibly on your return to civilization?" she asked impulsively. "After eight years away from it all something undoubtedly impressed you particularly."

Phillips ruminated. Then he spoke with decision: "The racket; yes, the infernal noise and turmoil! After the stretches of snow and ice where the splitting of a floe or the crack of a sledge can be heard for miles, the incessant tumult was well-nigh deafening!" He looked unseeingly out of the window and Jane knew that not the clamoring "L" trains or the shriek of traffic was holding his attention, but the memories of the frozen wastes he had traversed.

Suddenly Phillips brought his gaze back to the girl before him and a sudden inspiration seized him. He had forgotten during his years of exile how lovely a woman could be until this slip of a girl had come to question him.

"Promise me," and there was a boyish impulsiveness in his tone, "that you will not publish a word until I give you permission. I will arrange meanwhile to refuse all interviews. Lunch with me tomorrow and I will answer any question you may ask."

Jane left him, dazed. It was so much less than she had hoped for—and so much more! To become the recipient of marketable information and bound to withhold it indefinitely. Then a little flush of happiness quickened her heart. She was going to lunch with him!

Then followed a series of tantalizing days because she held at her pencil's end the means of establishing her foothold in newspaperdom; marvelous because of the association with a man of delightful personality and fascinating experience.

Over the dinner table, between acts at the opera, during long drives about the city, Phillips talked unrestrainedly of his adventures, telling to one small absorbed person all the little details and big deeds that a gaping public was on tiptoe to hear—yet at the same time withholding just enough to whet her curiosity and gain the promise of one more little expedition. Jane's efficient business sense told her that she was gathering material for a year's work, did she but have its author's permission to use it.

And like a parallel thread ran an increasing regard for the man himself, a fondness for little mannerisms he had of gesticulation, expressive yet restrained, tricks of speech, a way of smiling with one corner of his mouth.

Where was it going to end? Jane had placated the editor, with promises of ultimate success, but she knew that the time to strike was while the iron was hot and that news deferred is stale.

At last she decided she could wait no longer. She had promised Phillips to dine with him. And over the small coffee cup, which somehow looked absolutely tiny in his powerful hands, she explained the situation.

"I've got to be let off from my promise," she concluded. "If I fail in my first big assignment my doom is sure. Let me give you a write-up for the morning edition."

Phillips slowly tapped the ash from his cigar, regarding her thoughtfully. Then he folded his strong brown hands and bent towards her. "Miss Spaulding," he began, "there is one thing I hate—and that is publicity. What little I have done I am preparing to write up for the benefit of those who are especially interested. I haven't an iota of desire to see my picture in print or my name in the headlines. But there is the question of fairness to you.

"After my solitary years of exile you came into my life and I could not give you up. I am ashamed to confess that I put you off from day to day out of sheer desire for your companionship—and now my day of reckoning is at hand. Write me up as you wish, or else—marry me and learn it all at first hand. I sail on my second expedition a month from today."

For a moment Jane sat as one stunned. Marry this man whose very name made men speak with enthusiasm of his exploits! Become the comrade of his journeys into startled lands! Her heart beat faster as she raised her eyes. And what she saw shining in his was the reflection of a great and reverent love.

"Just to save you from being written up, Phillips—yes, I'll marry you," she promised tremulously.

A month later, as the Polar Star steamed down the harbor, Jane standing beside her husband at the rail, viewed without regret the vanishing skyline. Suddenly, she laughed a low, delicious laugh. "I may have lost my chance for fame in the newspaper world, but it took an offer of marriage—to you—to make me do it!"

CORAL REEFS FAR FROM OCEAN

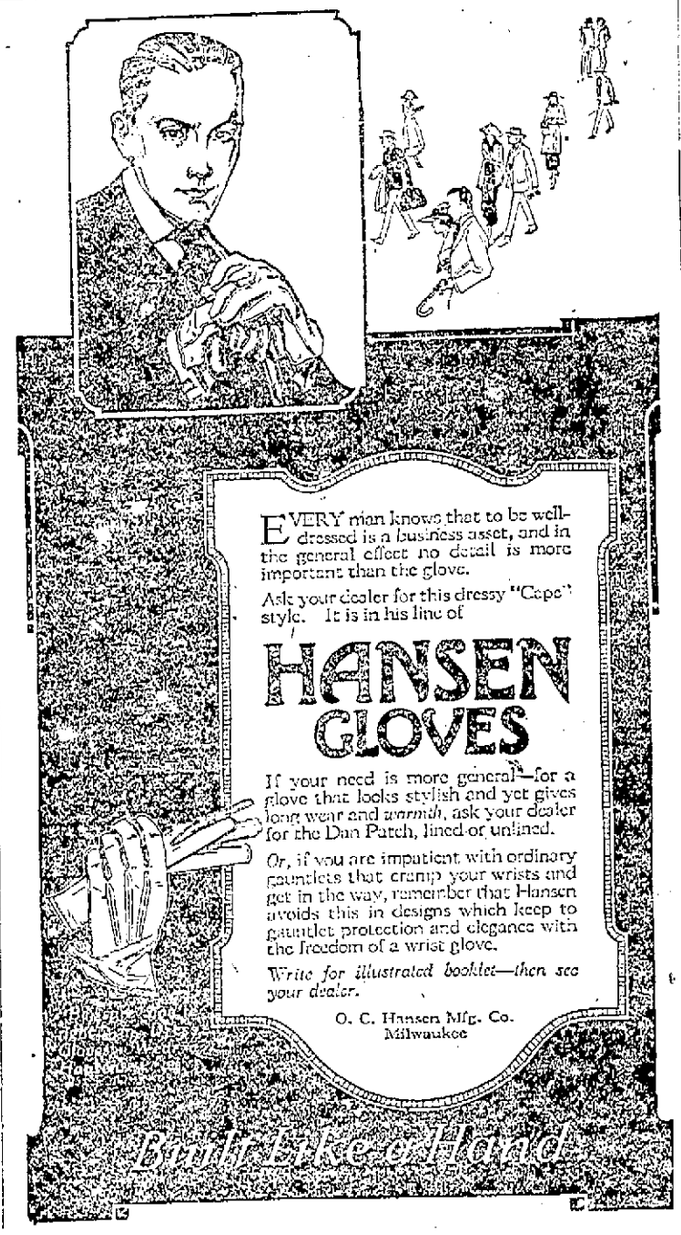

Mention of coral reefs naturally palm dotted inlets girt with white brings to one's mind a picture of sands in a tropical sea, but geologists have found coral reefs in the middle of the great continents. These, of course, belong to the past ages of the earth's history, and Paleozoic corals have been found in the Piman-Trails and in the Saluvian rocks of the New Siberian islands, but the most striking characteristics of these fosil corals are similar to those of the corals of today. It is assumed that you refer to a number of remarkable coral reefs that within recent years have been explored near Bainbridge, on the Flint river, in Georgia. These reefs are ascribed to the Tertiary age, and in one case a very large portion of the reef exposed consisted of coral heads, some of which were more than a foot in diameter. Between 25 and 30 species of coral have been recognized in these reefs.

SMALL PROFITS IN FARMING

The average middle west farm is not a place to seek a fortune. This statement is based on a study by the department of agriculture of 195 farms in Ohio, Indiana and Wisconsin. In Ohio and Indiana the studies cover seven years and in Wisconsin five. From the figures thus obtained the department statistical experts reached these conclusions: Few of the farmers in the groups studied have been making large profits during the recent years of comparatively high prices; that their average return on investment increased from about 4 per cent in 1912 to 7 per cent in 1918; and that most of them are making less than $500 cash per year.—The Nation's Business.

Cotton Growing for Tires

Until 1910 none of the particular type of cotton desired for tire manufacture was grown in the United States. Then the Government agricultural scientists planted the brown Egyptian seed and the adaptability of this grade of cotton to the soil of certain regions of the United States became firmly established. The Pima and Yuma varieties have been developed from the original sakalarides Egyptian grade. These two kinds take their names from the location of their experimental growth, one being developed near the city of Yuma and the other on the Pima Indian reservation. Once it had been started the growth of the cotton raising industry in this district was assured.

NOSE HEAVY JENNY IS SAFER NOW WITH DEFECTS REMEDIED

WASHINGTON.—The "nose heavy Jenny" is the way army air folks described one type of JN plane which, until recently made the lives of its pilots miserable because of its tendency to burrow downward in flight. The defect that sent the machines down by the head unless the aviator kept hauling them up with his control stick baffled the experts. Nearly 500 army planes of the type were not being flown because of it, the air service bulletin says, but the engineering chief at Dayton-Field has reported in the words of the man who flew the first modified "Jenny" that "she ain't quite so nose heavy" now.

The problem was finally entrusted for solution to "The heaviest and most powerful aerodynamic experts extant, two privates 1st class and a 2nd lieutenant," the chief said. After much worry with it, they discovered something by an authority on airplane stability which gave them a clue and by the "unorthodox and radical procedure" of turning the tail section plane upside down seemed in a fair way to cure the complaint. It would take a lot of mystifying language to explain it, but it worked.

NO HUSBAND IS PERFECT

Don't expect all the virtues in one man. If he is good natured he may be lazy; if he is scholarly, he may be cold; if he is thrifty, he may be stingy; if he is generous, he may be wasteful; if he is smooth, he may be deceitful. The man who charms you with his immaculate appearance is likely to be something of an old maid; the man who is careful to pick threads off your shirt is prone to pick flaws in you; the man who takes an undue interest in the selection of your hats may take an undue interest in the bill which comes home; the man who, before marriage, jumps to open the door, lest your fingers be contaminated by the knob, may after marriage, allow those same fingers to be contaminated by the washboard.—Woman's Home Companion.

STUDENT CONFERENCE

35 Colleges To Be Represented At Boston Meeting

BOSTON.—Student representatives of 35 or more colleges and technical schools of the country will participate in an intercollegiate conference on undergraduate government to be held here April 15-16. It gives promise of being the most important yet held.

The delegates, four from each institution, will include class presidents, heads of student councils, editors of college publications and the leaders of other phases of undergraduate life.

Student self-government methods, athletic organization, college publications, college theatrical and musical clubs and other undergraduate activities will be discussed, with special reference to student control. The conference also will consider the best means and methods for obtaining publicity for college activities now neglected or lacking notice in proportion to their importance.

The conference of which Massachusetts Institute of Technology will be the host, is the outgrowth of an informal discussion of student government problems held in New York last winter at the suggestion of J. C. Telmosse, president of the senior class of the University of Pennsylvania.

LOVE OF GOD

IN this was manifested the love of God toward us, because that God sent His only begotten Son into the world that we might live through Him.—I John 4: 9.

The American Ideal

WE are told Europeans tell it—a nation of dollar-grubbers. We have souls of earthworms, etc., etc. Yet as a nation we mourn the death of old John Burroughs, who never chased a dollar in his life, and who infinitely preferred the blue-bird in the tree-top to any number of "golden eagles." If the dollar is the American shrine, our greatest heroes should be the dollar-getters. But there never was a magnate in this country whose death aroused a tithe of the sincerity of regret with which the news of the great naturalist's passing was received. The fact of the matter is that John Burroughs came much closer to the average American's ideal of citizenship than most of the famous figures of finance. We may respect and emulate those whose business acumen has made them captains of finance and trade, but our admiration and affection is reserved for those noble souls who dare to act upon the universal inward belief that in the last analysis money does not count in determining personal worth. We share the belief with them, but the pinions of our faith are not strong enough to dare their flights. To "dollar-grubbing" America John Burroughs, lover of nature and the out-of-doors, scorner of place and power, seeker of truth, was the man he would like to be had he the chance. That the death of an old "bug-hunter" should be so sincerely and universally mourned in the United States is, we believe, not only a tribute to John Burroughs, but also an eloquent refutation of foreign slanders upon American character. Appreciation of unostentatious simplicity and fineness is not to be found among people who are themselves destitute of those qualities.

Taycheedah

TAYCHEEDAH is near Fond du Lac. Therefore it is, perhaps, not without a strain of self-interest that the Fond du Lac post of the American Legion has interested itself in the Huber proposition to convert the Taycheedah state institution for women into a state hospital for shell-shocked soldiers of the great war. But when that much is understood the facts set forth by the post in a general letter to the state deserve consideration on their merits. We submit, therefore, an appeal sent out by the ex-service men of Fond du Lac which, upon those who realize the importance of adequate and speedy hospitalization of war victims, will probably make a great impression:

First the fact should be firmly fixed in mind that the need for a hospital to treat mentally diseased soldiers (shell shock victims) is immediate and urgent. It is not imaginary, not theoretical but actual, vital and most important. Thousands are in need of hospitalization in this country and the government has no hospital facilities to offer them.

In Wisconsin there is need of an institution with accommodations for 250 to 280. New cases are developing every day. It is stated on the best authority that new cases are developing at the rate of 1500 per month in the United States. Wisconsin has its full quota. Today many of the Wisconsin victims of the war are being cared for in pauper insane asylums, housed with the incurable insane because no better method of giving them treatment is at hand.

At Taycheedah the state has an institution which has never been used. It is ready at this minute to house eighty-one patients. There is plenty of room to erect a barracks that would provide the additional quarters required. The barracks could be erected and the whole place be in operation in just sixty days. The best that could possibly be done by any other method is a year and a half and the chances are that two years would be consumed. And the need is so urgent. Many of the men could be saved by proper treatment during the time the state would occupy in building a new hospital for the soldier's care.

Here is a recitation of just exactly what the state has at Taycheedah. The site contains 243 acres of which 160 acres are under cultivation, thirty-five acres are woodland and ledge, just to the rear of the buildings, twenty acres of woodland in extreme east of the tract, balance buildings and lowland. Height at lowest point is fifteen feet above Lake Winnebago while the height at highest point is 175 feet. Special feature is a 70,000 gallon reservoir in top of ledge fed by deep, cold water springs. The supply is inexhaustible and is absolutely pure. Running water in all buildings would be supplied by gravity pressure.

The buildings, an administration building, a large structure erected for a maternity hospital, dwelling, barn, milk house and power house, are all of good construction and cost the state upwards of $300,000. There is nothing whatsoever about them that gives the impression of a jail or prison. It is a hospital or home. A basement 285x60 feet, clear, would provide indoor exercise and work space while the tillable land would provide plenty of outdoor work. The woodland would provide recreation. The environment is as perfect as it could be made in any part of Wisconsin.

The state of Wisconsin is under a promise to the soldier boys to give them, in return for the service which they have so nobly and unselfishly rendered, the best in its power. The need for the hospital is NOW. Every day of waiting means that the chances of some service man, who has become afflicted, are growing less to recover his mental balance and again become a useful citizen. In the case of a great catastrophe opera houses, halls, hotels and other available places are instantly converted into hospitals. No questions are asked about the present use of the buildings. THE NEED IS URGENT AND IMMEDIATE. Someone must be inconvenienced for the time being and if they murmur they so clearly demonstrate their selfishness that they are not deserving of consideration.

The situation at the present time in a nutshell is this: The state owns an institution at Taycheedah that has never been used. It is ideally situated for the memorial hospital for soldiers and sailors. It is ready for immediate use. It does not discommode anyone. It would save the state $400,000 in erection cost and save a delay of eighteen months in giving shell shock victims treatment. It would put the state in the front rank in paying its obligations to its service men.

Wire your assemblyman and state senator that you favor immediate relief for our soldiers and ask him to support the Huber bill, No. 119-S including the Memorial Hospital at Taycheedah. The soldier is entitled to this consideration. Help him get it.

The main points in favor of the proposition are that the state is not now using the Taycheedah Home, that it is easily adaptable for a shell-shock hospital, that its location and environment are favorable for such use, and that it would save the state some hundreds of thousands of dollars so to use it. The general proposition of the necessity of some such state institution, if Wisconsin is to discharge its obligation to its veterans, would seem to need no argument. It seems to be a pretty stiff case for the affirmative.

Try it Another Way

THE lever was man's first invention. He placed a tree trunk under a mammoth carcass and pried it up. Then one day there came a "genius" who dropped a rock on the end of a poised lever and thus was born the first machine delivering power. Look about you. When you see persons engaged in simple mechanical operations, experiment a little. "Do the trick," another way. Perhaps it won't "work," but then again you may discover a new and better process. For untold years man has separated gold nuggets from sand by mixing both with water and then carefully shaking the inclosing vessel until the heavier gold sank to the bottom and the sand was carried away. That is a slow process and altogether unsatisfactory. Just this year a "genius" made the overwhelming "discovery" that if a mixture of sand and gold bits was left dry and shaken vertically, in about one-tenth the time it would take to pan a wet sand and gold mixture, all the gold in the dry mixture would rise to the top of the sand. He's applied for patent on his gold separator. Barring misfortune he'll be wealthy and they'll call him a "genius," because he was the first man to do this thing backward.

"Assistant government" is merely another name for lobby rule.

In Ye Olden Times

TEN YEARS AGO TODAY

Several La Crosse business men have been invited to take the trip through Wisconsin by the merchants and manufacturers of Milwaukee. The tour is one to acquaint the Milwaukee men with their customers as well as to give them an idea of what the various parts of the state produce. Parts of Minnesota and Illinois will also be visited.

District Attorney James Thompson has announced that he has been unable so far to find any trace of Hans Olsen Lien, who was made heir to a large fortune by the death of a brother in Norway. Mr. Lien's right name is Hans Erdmanshof, but on coming to America he changed it to a shorter one. He is a native of Ringsaker, Norway, and his relatives last heard of him in 1895 when he wrote that he was living in North La Crosse.

Congressman John J. Esch has returned from a visit to the military range at Sparta and to the Indian school at Tomah.

Declaring that the city would thrive under a closed town rule and that the contention that a "district" was necessary to every city is wrong, the socialists held a small but enthusiastic meeting at Fjelstad's hall last night. Rousing speeches were made in which the speakers advocated systematizing the business of the city, making efficiency the test in appointments instead of politics, police reforms and eight hour days in city offices.

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Work was started today on the excavating of the basement of the new Wisconsin Telephone Exchange at Fourth and State streets.

Capt. A. J. Hill who returned to his home here from the gold region last fall, has gone back to the Klondike country and will stay all summer.

Rev. Tavert, formerly a pastor in La Crosse, but who for several years past has been living in Pennsylvania, is in La Crosse visiting old friends and will speak at a gathering at the Y. M. C. A. tomorrow. He left the ministry temporarily on account of failing health.

At the regular meeting of the La Crosse Pastors' association at the Y. M. C. A. rooms this morning an interesting discussion developed as to the propriety of excluding Universalist church pastors from the association. The reason is that nineteen years ago a Universalist minister gained admission and since that time pastors of that church have been admitted. The question was raised at this time because of dissatisfaction engendered over union services last Thanksgiving day. A motion to so amend the constitution as to exclude Universalists was lost, however.

THIRTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Mr. Albert C. Hopkins, an advocate of the pansy as a national flower and the originator of the new design for the American flag, is in the city advocating the adoption of his design which he exhibited in a lecture at Sill and Bliss' hall. In the starry corner of the flag he affixes as an emblem a pansy, inside the petals of which are grouped forty-four stars. It is so arranged that stars may be taken out or added without injuring the effect.

La Crosse river has overflowed its banks.

The large brick residence of Mr. B. E. Edwards on Cass street, has been purchased for a Home for the Friendless for $7,000. Mr. Edwards' price was $8,000 but in view of the charitable purpose for which it was designed, took off $500 and then subscribed $500.

Teamsters of the city have called a meeting for tonight at White Beaver hall to organize a union.

A Man For the Ages

BY

Irving Bacheller

(Copyright 1919 by Irving Bacheller)

Brimstead spoke in a most confidential tone as he answered: "Say, I'll tell ye—no wise man is ever an idiot but once. I wouldn't care to spread it around much but we're gettin' along. I've built this house and got my land paid for. You see we are only four miles from the Illinois river on a good road. I can ship my grain to Alton or St. Louis or New Orleans without much trouble. I've invented a machine to cut it and a double plow and I expect to have them both working next year. They ought to treble my output at least."

After supper Brimstead showed models of a mowing machine with a cut bar six feet long, and a plow which would turn two furrows.

"That's what we need on these prairies," said Samson. "Something that'll turn 'em over and cut the crop quicker."

"Say, I'll tell ye," said Brimstead as if about to disclose another secret, "I found after I looked the ground over here that I needed a brain. I began to paw around an' discovered a rusty old brain among my tools. It hadn't been used for years. I cleaned an' oiled the thing an' got it workin'. On a little Vermont farm you could get along without it but here the ground yells for a brain. We don't know how to use our horses. They have power enough to do all the hard work, if we only knew how to put it into wheels and gears. We must begin to work our brains as well as our muscles on a farm miles long an' wide."

"It ain't fair to expect the land to furnish all the fertility," said Samson.

Brimstead's face glowed as he outlined his vision:

"These great stretches of smooth, rich land just everlastingly ram the spurs into you and keep your brain galloping. Mine is goin' night and day. The prairies are a new thing and you've got to tackle 'em in a new way. I tell you the seeding and planting and mowing and reaping and threshing is all going to be done by machinery and horses. The wheel will be the foundation of the new era."

"You're right," said Samson.

"How are you gettin' along?"

"Rather slow," Samson answered. "It's hard to get our stuff to market down in the Sangamon country. Our river isn't navigable yet. We hope that Abe Lincoln, who has just been elected to the legislature, will be able to get it widened and straightened and cleaned up so it will be of some use to us down there."

"I've heard of him. They call him Honest Abe, don't they?"

"Yes; and he is honest if a man ever was."

"That's the kind we need to make our laws," said Mrs. Brimstead. "There are not many men who get a reputation for honesty. It ought to be easy, but it isn't."

"Men are pretty good in the main," said Samson. "But ye know there are not so many who can exactly toe the mark. They don't know how or they're too busy or something. I guess I'm a little careless, and I don't believe I'm a bad fellow either. Abe's conscience don't ever sit down to rest. He traveled three miles one night to give back four cents that he had overcharged a customer. I'd probably have waited to have her come back, and by that time it might have slipped my mind or maybe she would have moved away. I suppose that in handling dollars we're mostly as honest as Abe, but we're apt to be a little careless with the cents. Abe toed the penny mark, and that's how he got his reputation. The good God has given him a sense of justice that is like a chemist's balance. It can weigh down to a fraction of a grain. Now he don't care much about pennies. He can be pretty reckless with 'em. But when they're a measure on the balance, he counts 'em careful, I can tell ye."

"Say, I'll tell ye," said Brimstead. "Honesty is like Sapington's pills. There's nothing that's so well recommended. It has a great many friends. But Honesty has to pay prompt. We don't trust it long. It has poor credit. When we have to give a dollar's worth of work to correct an error of four cents, we're apt to decide that Honesty don't pay. But that's when it pays best. We've heard the jingle o' them four cents 'way up here in Tazewell county, an' long before you told us. They say he's a smart talker an' that he can split ye wide open laughin'."

"He's a great story teller, but that's a small part of him," said Samson. "He's a kind of a four horse team. He knows more than any man I ever saw and can tell it and he can wrestle like old Satan and swing a scythe or an axe all day an' mighty supple. He's one of us common folks and don't pretend to be a bit better. He is, though, and we know it, but I don't think he ain't it?"

"Say, there ain't many of us smart enough to keep that little piece of ignorance in our heads," said Brimstead. "It's worth a fortune, now—ain't it?"

"Is he going to marry the Rutledge girl?" was the query of Mrs. Brimstead.

"I don't think so," Samson answered, a little surprised at her knowledge of the attachment. "He's as humly as Sam Hill and dresses rough and ain't real handy with the gals. Some fellers are kind o' fenced in with humbleness and awkwardness."

Brimstead expressed his private opinion in a clearly audible whisper: "Say, that kind o' protection is better'n none. A humly boy don't git trampled on an' nibbled too much."

Annabel and Harry sat in a corner playing checkers. They seemed to be much impressed by the opinion of Mr. Brimstead. For a moment their game was forgotten.

"That boy has a wey with the gals," Samson laughed. "There's no such fence around either of them."

"They're both liable to be nibbled some," said Brimstead.

"I like to see 'em have a good time," said his wife. "There are not many boys to play with out here."

"The boys around here are all fenced in," said Annabel. "There's nobody here of my age but Lanky Peters, who looks like a fish, and a red-headed Irish boy with a wooden leg."

"Say, she's like a woodpecker in a country where there ain't any trees," said Brimstead, in his confidential tone.

"No, I'm not," the girl answered. "A woodpecker has wings and the right to use them."

"Cheer up. A lot of people will be moving in here this spring—more boys than you could shake a stick at," Mrs. Brimstead remarked, cheerfully.

"If I shake any stick at them, it will be a stick of candy, for fear of scaring them away," said Annabel, with a laugh.

Brimstead said to Samson: "Say, I'll tell ye, you're back in a cove. You must get out into the current."

"And give the young folks a chance to play checkers together," said Samson.

"Say, I'll tell ye," said Brimstead. "This country is mostly miles. They can be your worst enemy unless you get on the right side of 'em. Above all, don't let 'em get too thick between you an' your market. When you know about where it is, keep the miles behind ye. Great markets will be springin' up in the north. You'll see a big city growin' on the southern shore of Lake Michigan before long. I think there will be better markets to the north than there are to the south of is."

"By jingo!" Samson exclaimed. "Your brain is about as busy as a beehive on a bright summer day."

"Say, don't you mention that to a livin' soul," said Brimstead. "My brain began to chase the rainbow when I was a boy. It drove me out o' Vermont into the frail to the west and landed me in Elea Valley. Now I'm in a country where no man's dreams are goin' to be big enough to keep up with the facts. We're right under the end o' the rainbow and there's a pot o' gold for each of us."

"The railroad will be a help in our fight with the miles," said Samson.

"All right. You get the miles behind ye and let the land do the waiting. It won't hurt the land any, but you'd be spoilt if you had to wait twenty years."

The Peasley's arrived and the men and women spent a delightful hour traveling without weariness over the long trail to beloved scenes and the days of their youth. Every day's end thousands were going east on that trail, each to find his pot of gold at the foot of the rainbow of memory.

Before they went to bed that night Brimstead paid his debt to Samson, with interest, and very confidentially.

At daylight in the morning the team was at the door ready to set out for the land of plenty. As Samson and Harry were making their farewells, Annabel asked the latter:

"May I whisper something in your ear?"

"I was afraid you wouldn't," he said.

He bent his head to her and she kissed his cheek and ran away into the house.

"That means come again," she called from the door, with a laugh.

"I guess I'll have to—to get even," he answered.

"That's a pretty girl," said Samson, as they were driving away.

MANY GIRLS MISSED BIG CHANCE; COULD NOT WRITE LETTERS

["What a Girl Can Become"]

Letter-writing doesn't seem so very important. But it is. To illustrate we'll take a bit of conversation that passed between two business men not long ago:

Said one: "You know, George, I've been hunting for the last two weeks for a stenographer who can write a letter, and I haven't found one yet."

"A stenographer who can write a letter?" repeated the other.

"Yes, a letter of her own composition. There are hundreds of stenographers in this city, but I'll bet half of them don't know anything more about letter writing than how to take dictation and run a typewriter.

"I'm looking for a girl who can handle a bigger job than stenography. I want one who in time can take care of our correspondence department—and I haven't found her."

But one day along came the very girl. She was hired. Before she was over twenty-one years of age she was head correspondent for the firm.

Just think of all the other girls who had to pass by that excellent chance for a real future! And all because they couldn't write a letter.

Practice makes perfect in letter-writing. One must learn to say what he means, and say it so the other fellow can understand. Often a letter is written in such a way that the receiver can't make head nor tail of its meaning. Correspondence with your friends helps.

Some letters are about as attractive and interesting as a circus without monkeys or clowns or elephants. Get your enthusiasm into your letters—make 'em bubble over with life.

Have your letters criticized—criticism stings sometimes, but you'll find it really doesn't hurt. Talk to some of your business friends and ask them to make suggestions and corrections. Let your family help you. And your teacher.

And then, you, like that one girl we mentioned, may be head of some correspondence department before you're twenty-one. Who knows?

(Tomorrow: A few general suggestions for the boy who wants to be handy about the house.)

WINNERS OF CONTEST WILL GET $25 AWARDS

Two prizes of $25 each are to be given, one to a boy and one to a girl, for the best two deliveries of a selection from Shakespeare at the California State Shakespeare contest to be held April 23rd, under the direction of the Greek Theater of the University of California.

Preliminary deliveries will be made early in the morning and seven boys and seven girls will be chosen to take part in the finals.

The purpose of the contest is to increase the familiarity with the poetry of Shakespeare among high school students.

A FAMILIAR QUOTATION

(Who wrote it?)

Oh, would I were a boy again,
When life seemed formed of sunny years,
And all the heart then knew of pain
Was wept away in transient tears.

Yesterday:

Little drops of water, little grains of sand,
Make the mighty ocean and the pleasant land.
So the little minutes, humble though they be,
Make the mighty ages of eternity.—Julia A. Fletcher, "Little Things."

BOYHOOD STORIES OF FAMOUS MEN

Yoshio Markino

They have fly paper in Japan as well as in America, and there must have been a lot of it in Yoshio Markino's home.

Little Yoshio, while crawling on the floor one day, got his hands on a piece of fly paper and the more he struggled to get it off, the stickier it became. The matter grew dangerous, for Yoshio got the paper on his face and soon he could scarcely breathe.

But someone called in a doctor and a barber and after cutting and shaving Yoshio's hair the boy was rescued.

Yoshio Markino became a famous Japanese artist. He has also written several books, two of which are "A Japanese Artist in London," and "When I Was a Child."

TODAY'S GREAT PERSON

A Day for Wise Men!

By Dr. WILLIAM E. BARTON

Tomorrow opens the day which for centuries has been sacred to the memories and the pranks of fools. For hundreds of years in England it has been the custom of groups of giggling servant-maids to send some simple swain to the bookstore for a copy of "The Life of Eve's Grandmother," or to the chemist's for a pennyworth of pigeon's milk, and to be labeled a fool for trying to please them. The practical jokes of this anniversary are hoary with antiquity, and there is little likelihood that this or any similar editorial will materially lessen them.

BARTON

But why should a day be set apart for fools? Have they not days enough already? Are they not days enough in the whole round of days from January to June and on to bleak December sufficiently given over to folly? Why not have one day for wise men? And why not rededicate April 1 to men and deeds of wisdom? One notable anniversary, All Saints' Day, has been transformed in reverse order; why not change All Fools' Day, and on one day seek everyone of us to be wise?

No one knows better than the writer of these words how futile the suggestion will be. The follies of April 1 are far too dear to the world for any such suggestion to carry. But it is worth considering.

By the way, one of the most noted of literary jokes was perpetrated by a learned man who was born on April 1, 1709. His name was Robert Surtees, and he was an antiquarian of note. When his supply of genuine antiquities gave out, he fabricated old ballads and palmed them off on Sir Walter Scott, each of them with a clever story of how he came by them; and Scott died without ever learning that the ballads which he published "by the courtesy of Mr. Surtees" were made to order by that obliging gentleman.

Some really wise men were born on April 1: as for example, William Harvey, discoverer of the circulation of the blood, who was born in 1578. If on April 1 you have occasion to call a taxi you might be interested in remembering that the business of the hackney coach, of which the taxi is the successor, was established in London with four coaches, and we first heard of it on April 1, 1639, when it had been operating for five years. There was great protest against it, because it harmed the business of the Thames boatmen, who denounced the drivers of coaches as thieves for stealing away their trade. One of the watermen was a poet, and has left his bitter complaint in verse. He was not the last man who used that term "thieves" concerning drivers of hacks.

PROHIBITION IS SLOW

Judges Find Kentucky Mountains Still Wet

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—Reports from mountainous counties of Kentucky indicate that prohibition has not yet reached some of those sections and that human life as a result has seldom been cheaper.

At Harlan Judge W. T. Davis, in ordering that no man who drinks be called for jury duty, said: "The 10 homicides in this county are due to whisky. Failing to enforce prohibition laws has permitted a wave of crime to engulf us."

Judge Roscoe Vanover, at Whitesburg, says that among the cases tried before him in a year 26 homicides were directly due to whisky.

William Peavley, shot to death as he bolted from a deputy jailer while being taken to prison, was the tenth man arrested and convicted in 10 days for carrying a gun at Pineville.

The Tractor's Uses in Winter

In the summer time on the farm the tractor is kept busy without any trouble of hunting jobs for it, but to represent the greatest efficiency there must be work for it all the time. With a little ingenuity it is possible to make the engine do a number of important chores about the farm, such as sawing wood, grinding feed, shredding corn, baling hay, pumping water, and there are instances where the tractor has been removed into a quarry and kept busy during the winter months in crushing stone for which there is always a demand a few months later when building operations are renewed.

A Flivver Catches Grasshoppers

Fred Hawkins, a farmer in southern Thayer county, has discovered a new use for the flivver. Grasshoppers are plentiful in his section and it is necessary to kill them off now before they can lay their eggs. He attaches to the front of his Ford car a traplike device made on the principle of a vacuum cleaner. It takes in a 20-foot swath and will function at any speed up to forty miles an hour. He has cleaned five hundred acres of alfalfa by this device and gathered in about three-quarters of a ton of hoppers in the once over.—Sioux City Tribune.

AGENCIES OPPOSE PLAN TO REGISTER STATE DETECTIVES

Law Would Make Wisconsin Paradise of Criminals Declares Detective

DETECTIVE AGENCIES ARE ATTACKED BY LABOR SPEAKERS

Legislation Necessary to Protect Unions is Claim

MADISON, Wis.—Organized labor and private detective agencies clashed in verbal encounters with charges of crookedness and criminal action against each other, before a joint hearing of the assembly state affairs and commerce and manufacturers committee Wednesday. It was one of the most bitter conflicts in committee hearings of the session, with frequent interruptions and heckling.

Private detective agencies from Milwaukee appeared to support a measure abolishing the present statutes making the registration of private detectives necessary, and another making the approval of the secretary of state the only requirement for the practice of detective work. Under the present statutes approval of the police and fire commission of a city is necessary.

"The most vicious, the most criminal detective agency in the United States is the Pinkerton agency," declared J. A. Padway, representing the Wisconsin Federation of Labor, in refuting arguments of representatives of the organization. "They are employing spies among the working men of industrial plants and are disrupting union organization wherever possible."

"Wisconsin will become the paradise of criminals if the registration of private detectives is required," John F. Farris, an agency representative, stated. He declared that registration of a detective abolishes secrecy, the prime necessity of a detective, and it becomes impossible to apprehend criminals because of the impossibility of working unknown.

"You might as well hang a bell around a man's neck and put a banner on him saying 'I am a private detective' if you do not repeal this law," a representative of the Pinkerton agency stated.

Statements that operation of the present requirement that a detective must give his name, address and employment will drive the agencies out of business were made by opponents of the existing law. Counter charges that the employment of a man did not necessarily say where he is working were made by those favoring the law as it stands.

Labor leaders declared that registration of detectives was necessary to prevent espionage within unions and it was declared that protection of unions was just as important as the protection of the shop or factory of the employer. Much objection is being taken to the so-called industrial work, which consists of hiring agencies to be on guard inside plants, it was pointed out.

Detective agencies are at the mercy of police commissioners for permission to conduct business, it was charged, and that since the business is state wide localities had too much power when granting or refusing approval of licenses that made it possible to carry on business. The secretary of state is the only one who acts on the license, it was declared.

Didn't Have the Price

Returning home from the dentist's, where he had gone to have a loose tooth drawn, little Raymond reported as follows: "The doctor told me before he began that if I cried or screamed it would cost a dollar, but if I was a good boy it would be only 50 cents." "Did you scream?" his mother asked. "How could I?" answered Ray, "you only gave me 50 cents."—National Republican.

185 DOLLS SHOW MILADY'S FASHIONS FOR 1,600 YEARS

PITTSFIELD, Mass.—Fashions in woman's wear for the last 1600 years from the abundant robes of the Roman patrician to the abbreviated skirts of today, are represented on 185 dolls dressed by Mrs. Charles S. Wright of this city. Work was begun on the unique collection of mannequins more than six years ago, after months of study of authenticated prints portraying styles of different periods. It is said to be one of the best of its kind in the world.

In a specially furnished room madames of the dark ages, contemplate belles of the Renaissance and sprightly debutantes of our ante-bellum and modern days. Eve also has a place in the fashion review, but merely as an example of how clothes make the woman.

One of the most interesting costumes is that of a fisherwoman from the Firth of Forth. Tailored suits and peek-a-boo waists have had no effect on the lusty Scots who live on that arm of the sea, for their dress standard has remained unchanged for 500 years.

Shifts in American styles are illustrated by eight waxen faced beauties starting with the sweet gown of 1850. In this display are an afternoon frock of 1857, a calling costume of 1860, ball gowns of 1860 and spring wear of 1869. The opera goer of 1910 stands haughtily erect in the extremely tight skirt of that year.

Leaders in dazzling costumes are the Japanese from the time of their introduction to the western world. Slant eyed, brown faced dolls present a complete picture of feminine Nippon's armor of conquest in rich silks and satins. A large group of Chinese mannequins, arrayed in heavy silk fabric, peep from beneath coquettish Oriental sunshades.

Hats have received particular attention in the collection. There are horned headgear popular in the year 1200, the monster picture hats and the sugar-loaf hoods with clusters of hair, dressed high against the supporting heart-shaped device.

In analyzing the various styles, Mrs. Wright who is an author and the wife of the district attorney of Berkshire and Hampden counties, says women of all ages apparently cared less for the material and more for the cut the world over.

Good Roads and Literacy

Many factors contribute to the illiteracy of a state or section, but it has been found that one of the most important is the condition of the highways. Where the roads are good the schools are more generally made use of and the intelligence of the community is higher. In Arkansas, Missouri, Mississippi and North Carolina, where less than two per cent. of the roads are improved, there is to be found the most deplorable conditions of illiteracy. In Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Jersey and Rhode Island, where thirty per cent. of the roads are improved, there is a very small percentage of the population who can be classed as illiterates.

Make your skin "A skin you love to touch"

A BEAUTIFUL skin, soft, smooth, faultlessly clear—any girl can have this charm.

For your skin is constantly changing—each day old skin dies and new takes its place. Give this new skin the right treatment, and see how soft and lovely you can keep it.

If your skin is very sensitive and easily irritated, use each night this special treatment:

DIP a soft washcloth in warm water and hold it to your face.

Now make a warm water lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap and dip your cloth up and down until the cloth is "fluffy" with the soft, white lather.

Rub this lathered cloth gently over your skin until the pores are thoroughly cleansed.

Rinse first with warm, then with clear, cool water and dry carefully.

THE very first time you use this treatment it will leave your skin with a slightly drawn, tight feeling. Do not regard this as a disadvantage—it is an indication that the treatment is doing you good, for it means that your skin is responding in the right way to this method of cleansing. After a few treatments the drawn feeling will disappear and your skin will gain a new, healthful sense of softness and smoothness.

Get a cake of Woodbury's today, at any drug store or toilet goods counter, and begin this treatment tonight. A 25-cent cake of Woodbury's will last for a month or six weeks. The Andrew Jergens Co., Cincinnati, New York and Perth, Ontario.

WOMEN ENROLL FOR UNIVERSITY EXTENSION CLASS

THE CLASS in family case work being organized by the university extension division is about complete.

The Associated Charities and the University Extension announce that a sufficient number of women enrolled in this course to insure it a success here in La Crosse. There will be opportunity, however, for anyone else who may be interested to enroll in this work.

The work is to be conducted by Miss Helen Bussel, the faculty member of the University of Wisconsin. Miss Bussel has had a great deal of experience in Associated Charities' work in Detroit and her work with the Red Cross in Chicago has been along this same line. She is now with the University of Wisconsin and is devoting a great deal of her time to the training of volunteer social workers in the cities of Wisconsin. La Crosse is very fortunate to have the opportunity of getting the benefit of Miss Bussel's experience in giving this training to volunteer workers.

Miss Bussel will be here during the month of April and will conduct eight classes. The rest of her time will be devoted to conferences with members of the class and conducting the practical field work with members.

These same classes have been conducted in other cities of Wisconsin with most marked success and the results have been most gratifying to those interested in the work of charity.

If there is anyone who may be interested in joining this class they may communicate with Miss Helen Dyson of the Associated Charities, phone number 891; or with the University extension Division, phone 635.

BEAUTIFUL EYEBROWS AND LASHES

Every Girl Can Have Them By Using a Simple Preparation

The eyes are the windows of the soul; it therefore behooves every girl to provide a beautiful "setting" for her eyes if nature has failed to supply it. Nothing enhances the charm of the face more than beautiful brows and lashes.

If you really want to have rich, well-defined, dark brows and long, up-turned lashes, obtain of your druggist one-half ounce of orbilone. By following directions you will be surprised at the results.

Orbilone is an absolutely harmless preparation which quickly promotes the growth of the brows and lashes. It will not stiffen the lashes, will not cause them to break, and positively will not run. It comes in three shades:—dark, light, and brown. The brown and the dark also serve to darken the brows and lashes.

Be sure you get genuine orbilone. You can obtain it from any well-stocked drug store, or it will be mailed post-paid on receipt of fifty cents by the Orbilone Laboratories Co., 1259 N. Clark Street, Chicago.—Adv.

Castor Oil Has Many Uses

Castor oil has a number of important uses which it is not generally given credit for. One of the largest employments found for it is in the making of transparent soaps. It also yields an acid utilized in the making of candles, and is an important ingredient of varnishes suitable for polishing furniture and carriage bodies. Castor oil is also used in the making of certain waterproof preparations. It is an essential component in some artificial rubbers, and in certain kinds of celluloid. From it is obtained the so-called "turkey red" oil so highly prized for the dyeing of cotton textiles, and lastly it enters into the tanglefoot preparation of fly paper.

The 1920 Census

In the last ten years we have added to our population a nation almost as large as Spain and one which is twice as large as Belgium. The Netherlands is generally regarded as a thriving and vigorous country, yet it does not contain half as many people as is our increase for this same period. In ten years three Norways and three Swedens have been annexed to the United States, and six Denmarks have added their fortunes to our own.—World's Work.

Origin of Word "Doll" Obscure

The origin of the word "doll" is obscure, but the common explanation frequently given that the word is an abbreviation of "idoll" or "idol," is said by the best authorities to be certainly wrong. It is thought probable that the word is derived from Doll or Dolly, diminutives of the woman's name, "Dorothy," which in Greek signifies the gift of God; hence the idea of a gift to a child for a plaything.

Dyes which show great resistance to heat and light often succumb quickly when treated with such substances as chlorin or the alkalies.

REBELLION IN STOMACH

"Pape's Diapepsin" at once ends Indigestion and Sour, Acid Stomach

Lumps of undigested food cause pain. If your stomach is in a revolt; if sick, gassy and upset, and what you just ate has fermented and turned sour; head dizzy and aches; belch gases and acids and eructate undigested food—just take a tablet or two of Pape's Diapepsin to help neutralize acidity and in five minutes you wonder what became of the pain, acidity, indigestion and distress.

If your stomach doesn't take care of your liberal limit without rebellion; if your food is a damage instead of a help, remember the quickest, surest, most harmless stomach antacid is Pape's Diapepsin, which costs so little at drug stores.

STATE WILL HAVE PLENTY OF FUNDS TO CARRY ON ITS WORK DECLARES TREASURER JOHNSON

MADISON, Wis.—The state's general fund will amount to $11,000,000 on July 1, a total much in excess of that of any other year, Treasurer Henry Johnson announced today in an official statement from his department. This is an increase of $2,200,000 from 1920, and more than twice as much as for any previous year since 1915 when $4,620,195 was in the treasury.

While not specifying for what purposes these funds are to be designed, the state treasurer brings out the conclusion that more money is on hand for use by the present administration than was available to the Philipp regime, of which he was a member. He said that there "should be enough money on hand to run the state government if the legislature does not venture into new enterprises."

Telling of the funds which will be available to open the fiscal year, Treasurer Johnson says that "the general fund as a rule is the one that guides the financial condition of the state as that fund is what is known as the 'grab bag' proposition, since other funds are guarded more strictly by law."

A table showing the condition of the fund during the past six years was included in the statement. The condition was portrayed as follows:

July 1, 1915	$4,620,195.02
July 1, 1916	2,069,728.29
July 1, 1917	2,087,073.76
July 1, 1918	3,532,612.74
July 1, 1919	5,291,505.97
July 1, 1920	8,748,691.65
July 1, 1921 (estimate)	11,000,000.00

"In addition to the estimate we have $800,000 coming from the federal government for equipment of troops during the war, which, no doubt, if effort is made, can be collected. Only one-half of the railroad taxes are included in the statement, the other half, due next fall, amounting to about $3,300,000."

"I am not, however, giving out this statement either for or against any legislation that might be before the legislature," the treasurer assured in his explanation. "Tax problems have been before governments for the past 2,000 years and will always continue to be, seeking ways and means to more equitably distribute the cost of government, and the greatest arguments are usually for the other fellow to pay the taxes."

The general fund is replenished at this time by returns from county tax levies, and from a number of other sources, including highways and automobiles.

FIRE DESTROYS BARN AND DAMAGES HOUSE OF WILLIAM GAGE

Former Property of Arctic Ice and Fuel Co. Burned Completely on Wednesday

NO ESTIMATION OF LOSS TO PARTIES INVOLVED IS MADE

Three Hundred Dollars in Gas Masks is Saved from Flames

A fire destroying entirely the barn formerly owned by the Arctic Ice and Fuel company and causing considerable damage to the residence of William Gage, located at 622 Sumner street and immediately south of the Ice company property, occurred shortly after 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

Completely destroying the barn and spreading to the residence adjoining to the south, the fire damaged the entire side of the house, the intense heat also caused considerable damage to the interior of the second floor.

While no definite cause for the fire is known, the flames were reported to have been started by several youngsters who had been allowed to play about the premises. Several bales of paper stored in the structure by the Rubber Mills company was believed to be the starting place of the fire.

Following the abandonment of the property by the Ice company, a part of the structure formerly used as a storehouse for wagons, had been remodeled into a stable and at the time of the fire was being used to house horses of the Lerly Coal company.

A feature in connection with "property salvaged" from the upstairs room of the residence next door at the time when it was endangered by the flames, was a gas mask containing $300 in currency. Young "End" Gage had placed it there for safe keeping and came to the rescue just in time to save it from being burned. Considerable damage was done to the interior of the house on the side bordering the fire.

LEHAR READY TO MARCH ON CAPITAL CITY

is standing behind Regent Horthy. Charles is a prisoner rather than a guest, at Steinamanger."

Restoration Impossible?

VIENNA. — By The Associated Press.—Republicans here exultantly declare the visit of former Emperor Charles to Budapest and the fiasco attending his attempt to regain power has hashed whatever chance may have existed for the restoration of the monarchy, either in Hungary or Austria. Monarchists reluctantly admit a restoration seems impossible.

This is not only due to the disappointment which naturally follows failure, but as the details leak out there is a touch of the absurd attaching to the whole adventure which has reacted sharply against the former emperor.

It has also depressed the legitimists, who, while not desiring Charles to return, hoped for the future restoration of the Hapsburgs in the person of his son. The dramatic declaration of Charles to his friends here Friday that he would never leave Hungary alive, was repeated in Budapest when Admiral Horthy, regent of Hungary, remonstrated against his presence in that country, yet Premier Teleky found him a few hours later fleeing toward the border and taking refuge in the palace of Bishop Mikes in Steinamanger, later praying that he be given shelter.

Charles is Insistent

It appears that it was after Admiral Horthy had taken his determined stand in the Budapest palace interview against Charles' demand for restoration and the ministers summoned by Premier Teleky had begun arriving in the conference chamber, that the ex-ruler, feeling the humiliation of his situation, became more insistent and declared he would never leave Hungary alive.

Charles then began pleading with some of those about him for support. He pointed to General Lehar and exclaimed that there were three divisions of troops in West Hungary sworn to support him and ready to march upon Budapest. General Lehar then turned to Generals Pronay and Hayjas and asked:

"What about your men?"

Before either could reply, Admiral Horthy turned sharply on the two commanders and told them that if they attempted to answer they would be arrested.

Realizing he was alone, General Lehar left the room and telephoned to his troops not to move.

Must Leave Hungary

When Charles demanded that the nation be given a chance to express its will, Admiral Horthy, it is said, agreed to this, but refused the next request that Charles made, that he be permitted to reside in his old palace at Godollo, fifteen miles outside of Budapest. Admiral Horthy declared Charles must go out of Hungary the way he came.

Thereupon the ex-emperor left and entered an automobile which, with two other motor cars, took him, Generals Lehar, Pronay and Hayjas and Premier Teleky, back to Steinamanger.

Admiral Horthy has summoned the representatives of the small farmers who had refused to support the move for the return of Charles, to meet on Monday and demanded that Premier Teleky and Minister of Education Vasz be immediately expelled from the ministry.

A semi-official denial was made last night of the report that Spain had requested a safe conduct for the ex-emperor.

AN EDITORIAL ON ADVERTISING

Which necessaries of life received the smallest price boosts during the period of inflation?

You may not have given it much thought.

Do it now.

Sit down and figure out the percentage of increase you had to pay for meat, vegetables, poultry, bread as compared with trademarked, standardized, tested advertised products accepted by the great American public for their quality and reliability.

Take cereals—wheat, corn and oats advanced by leaps and bounds, from day to day—in all from two hundred to three hundred per cent during the period of the war.

Why?

Because while each year's grain harvest was bought and sold by speculators and intermediaries a dozen to a hundred times before it reached you, the breakfast cereal people provided against most of this inflation of prices by buying direct from the producer and advanced their prices, not as much as they could, but as little as was absolutely necessary.

In few cases did their price advances represent more than fifty per cent, instead of the two to three hundred per cent price advances on unbranded products.

Take canned goods—fruit, milk, vegetables, cocoa, beans, soups—in no single instance was the retail selling price advanced anywhere near as much as were those identical products in their original state without the hallmark of character and the guarantee of quality identified with their trade names.

The same is true of soaps, toilet goods, medicines, hats, hosiery, shoes and hundreds of other products that any consumer can readily think of.

More than this—when prices of these packaged, standardized quality products had to be advanced, the prices of unknown, unpackaged, unbranded, unguaranteed goods had been advanced weeks or months before, in conformity with the market prices of basic commodities.

Again why?

Simply because neither price nor quality of these unbranded products had been standardized and the unscrupulous middleman could get away with it.

The moral?

This—Advertised products afford you absolute protection as to quality, price and dependability.

PLANS UNDER WAY FOR CONFERENCE ON REPARATIONS

PARIS.—By The Associated Press.—The allied foreign office which deferred until after Easter, negotiations regarding Germany's refusal to pay the installment of one billion gold marks for the reparations account on March 23 at the behest of the reparations committee, now are exchanging views on the whole situation with reference to Germany, it was announced here Thursday.

The exchange of views, it was indicated, probably will culminate in another allied conference toward the end of April or the beginning of May. It is unlikely any important measures will be put into effect in the meantime.

MORGAN CASTS DOUBT ON LEGALITY OF CITY MARKET LEGISLATION

MADISON, Wis.—The constitutionality of proposed legislation permitting cities to establish public markets for sale of food products is questioned in an opinion of Attorney General William Morgan Thursday morning given to Clark M. Perry, chairman of the assembly committee on municipalities. The committee is considering four bills dealing with establishment of public markets.

"I am convinced that if the bill were enacted into law there would be little chance of its being held valid, "the attorney general said in speaking of the Kleist gill to "empower counties, cities and villages to engage in the purchase, sale, storage, and distribution of food products."

"It is a well established principle of constitutional law that public funds cannot be expended for private purposes," the opinion brings out. "No court has gone so far to hold, or even suggest that the business of purchasing or selling food products may be regarded as public purpose."

SAFETY FIRST PARTY IS HELD AT THE THEATER

Packed House Attends Show and Enjoys Singing of Popular Songs

A packed house greeted the first performance of the La Crosse Safety Party given at the La Crosse theater last night.

The subject of "Safety First" was entertainingly rendered by Mr. Al Kroes of the Employers' Mutual Liability Insurance company. No dry statistics were given but a snappy lantern slide illustration in five chapters was rendered. Community singing was enjoyed. A two reel safety first picture, with love and romance, featuring Mildred Wayne, closed the program. The same performance will be given tonight.

LIMIT WITHDRAWAL OF LIQUOR TO 200 GALLONS A QUARTER

WASHINGTON.—Regulations limiting withdrawals of liquor by retail druggists to 100 gallons each of spirits or wine for each quarter were issued Thursday by the bureau of internal revenue. While intended to clarify previous orders, the new regulations were said to serve in a way as a relaxation of restrictions limiting withdrawals to five cases of all kinds of liquor under one permit. There was no determination of the number of such permits to be issued for any retail druggist, however.

Officials said that where proof was given a larger quantity than the 200 gallon maximum might be withdrawn but investigations of sales by the average retail druggist had convinced officials that the limit set was sufficient to meet average needs.

SOVIET TO PERMIT HOLDING OF LANDS FOR NINE YEARS

No Re-Distribution of Land to be Made Until Expiration of Period

HELSINGFORS, Finland — (By The Associated Press)—The land tenure scheme of the Russian soviet government, announced in the Moscow newspapers received here Thursday, permits each man to hold his land for nine years, within which time there will be no redistribution.

It also provides that peasants whose holdings are scattered over a large area will in some cases be allotted new centralized holdings of an equivalent size.

This, it is pointed out here, appears to follow largely the plan of former Premier Stolypin, formulated many years back under the old regime, as a solution of the land problem in Russia.

respective orders headed the line, and beside them the secular clergy, followed by the monsignori, Cardinals O'Connell and Begin, and Archbishop John Bonzano, apostolic delegate and celebrant of the mass. All the higher church dignitaries were mourning color of purple.

Body on Purple Catafalque

Inside the cathedral, under the gilded dome at the foot of the center aisle, lay the body of James, Cardinal Gibbons, archbishop of Baltimore. He rested on a purple covered catafalque, dressed in his archbishop's robes, wearing his archbishop's mitre and the ring that so many thousands had kissed during his life. The rays of tall white candles lighted his benign features. At the foot of the bier was the cardinal's hat of red.

It was obvious that only a small part of the thousands who sought entry to the cathedral would be able to pass under the great portico. Most of the space was allotted to the clergy and admittance was by ticket only.

But this did not shake the great army of mourners massed around the great edifice. Disappointment staring them in the face, they stood their ground with the same determination that had been displayed by the tens of thousands who Wednesday pressed their way into the edifice to view the body of their devoted leader.

Burial in Cathedral Vault

The day really held two ceremonies. One was the great church assemblage at mass. The other was the simple burial service in the crypt of white marble under the cathedral sanctuary.

Cardinal Gibbons is the seventh soldier of the church to be buried in this vault and to him was alloted a place on the north side. The last time the crypt was opened was in 1872 when Archbishop Spalding was buried there.

BADGER ASSEMBLY BARS LOBBYIST FOR LA FOLLETTE GROUP

Former Assemblyman Ousted on Charge of Attempted Intimidation of Member

MADISON, Wis.—The assembly Thursday morning barred Glenn L. Turner, lobbyist for the La Follette progressive association, from the floor of the lower house for the remainder of the session. Turner, a former member of assembly, was accused of attempting to intimidate Assemblyman H. W. Stokes of Jefferson county, by circulating petitions demanding that Stokes either vote for the bills favored by the progressive association or resign.

The resolution demanding Turner's expulsion from the floor of the house carried, 52 to 25. This is said to be the second time on record that a former member has been denied the privileges of the floor.

BLIND OX PINES TO DEATH OVER PARTING FROM FEATHERED PAL

GREENSBORO, Ala.—The blind ox, famous as the protege of a stately gander on the J. A. Holcroft plantation near here, is dead and those on the farm believe his death is due directly to enforced separation from his guardian.

Recently it became necessary to transfer the ox to another pasture. The gander was unable to follow. The separation was too much for the ox and he pined and drooped, refused food and drink and finally lay down and died.

The ox and gander lately attracted widespread attention. Each day at regular intervals the gander would lead the ox to water strutting ahead of him, honking loudly so that his afflicted ward could follow the sound.

If other cattle approached the fowl would fly furiously at them and drive the intruders off.

LONDON—(By The Associated Press)—The coal miners began to leave the pits in various districts Thursday afternoon in line with the decision of the union executive committee to call a strike at midnight because of the failure to settle the miners' wage demands. The board of trade officials have decided that coal for export shall be rationed rigidly. Stocks for home consumption will be allocated to essential industries and all domestic consumers will be rationed the same as during the war. The supplies on hand, it was stated, are generally better than normal.

ROAD LOSES NICKEL ON EACH DOLLAR IS CLAIM OF MANAGER

Pennsylvania Official Says Company Cannot Operate Under Present Costs

WAGES FIXED BY LABOR BOARD DECLARED "ABNORMALLY HIGH"

Conferences on Between Rail Officials and Employes

PITTSBURGH, Pa. — It has become impossible to operate the Pennsylvania railroad successfully and continue to pay the "abnormally high" wages fixed by the railroad labor board, C. S Krick, general manager of the eastern region declared Thursday in opening a series of conferences between officials of the company and representatives of its employes to discuss proposed reductions in salaries and wages.

Mr. Krick maintained the entire world rapidly is getting back to normal and that the cost of living has been steadily going down.

"At present," he declared, "nearly 70 cents out of every dollar the Pennsylvania railroad receives from operation is paid out in wages. The remaining 30 cents is not sufficient to buy fuel and other materials and pay out taxes and other obligations. Operating expenses in February exceeded operating revenue by more than $2,300,000. It cost the Pennsylvania railroad $1.05 to take in $1.00, without considering the taxes, fixed charges and other obligations.

"Without taking dividends into consideration the Pennsylvania system was operated in February at a loss of more than $8,500,000."

CONWAY RESOLUTION IN HOUSE PAYS HIGH TRIBUTE TO M'CARTHY

Milwaukee Man Asks that Body of Dead Badger Lie in State in the Capitol

"FAITHFUL SERVANT OF THE PEOPLE" SAYS RESOLUTION

Public Service of McCarthy Reviewed by Conway

MADISON, Wis.—The request that the body of Dr. Charles McCarthy, late head of the legislative reference library, lie in state in the capitol, was presented to the house Thursday by Assemblyman Thomas H. Conway, Milwaukee. Dr. McCarthy died at Prescott, Arizona, last Saturday and his remains are expected to arrive in Madison Thursday night.

The Conway resolution reviews the life of Dr. McCarthy commending his public service to the state. Should the family of the deceased permit the body to be brought to the capitol it will be the first time that this mark of distinction has been conferred upon any person probably since the Civil War days.

The Conway resolution characterizes Dr. McCarthy as "the faithful servant of the legislature and the people." His work in helping to secure the primary election act, the public utility act, and the workmen's Compensation act, the industrial commission and the marketing department are all reviewed.

"One dream which has never come to a direct fulfillment is his dream of a real training school for public service," declares the Conway resolution. "More than any one man in this country he has worked to secure recognition by schools and colleges and governments of the necessity for practical training for public service. Indirectly he has accomplished his purpose. He, himself, was a training school for public service. Students, lawyers, men of affairs have come to stay with him in his library for days, or months or even years without pay, in order that they might learn the secret of the life and game of the Wisconsin reference library. Some have remained in the public service of Wisconsin; others have gone elsewhere. But today, wherever great constructive movements are in operation, there the influence of McCarthy is active. There his students, his associates, those whom he has trained and with whom he has worked are to be found in the co-operative movement, in the field of marketing, in the cooperative activities of labor, in the efforts for industrial and political efficiency.

"He was a great inventor. He was not the kind of an inventor whose inventions bring financial reward. He was rather the social inventor, and his inventions were plans for the future welfare of mankind—plans which can only be carried out step by step by those who follow him. He planned far into the future, but his sane and steady insistence on planning and taking 'the next step' was one of his great contributions to the political life of the state and nation. He laid his plans and knew where he was going; but he insisted on going forward if it were only one step at a time.

"But he did not work alone. What he accomplished he accomplished with and through others. To others he would and did give the credit for perfecting and carrying through the plans which he had conceived. This man whose knowledge of industry, of business, of markets, of administration, of politics and economics, and above all, of people made him sought after in private business with tempting offers of princely salaries, listened humbly and respectfully to the opinions of all. He loved people. He had faith in the intelligence of the men who came from the farms and factories and offices: Faith in American life; faith in the steady progress of mankind. Because he had faith, he had patience. He could wait and work. He could see torn down all that he had labored to build up, and then start patiently building over again. But with his faith and patience went fire and courage. The spirit of Wisconsin and the spirit of reverence for humanity and democracy burned within him."

Nine hundred and forty teams competed in the five-man event, which closed Wednesday night with the Saunders of Toronto, Ont., the winners of the $1,000 prize and gold medals, with a score of 3,066 pins. The A. H. Arnold and Brothers of Chicago, took second place with 3,047 pins and the Fleming Furnitures of Cleveland third place on a 2,961 total.

The Screen

AT THE THEATERS TODAY

Rivoli—Pola Negri in the third of First National big five super specials, "Passion," and Educational comedy, "Naughty Mary Brown"; Topics of the Day.

Majestic—Billie Burke in "Education of Elizabeth," Kinograms and vaudeville—McQuay and Hazelton in song and dance and Van and Yorke, comedians.

Riviera—Ye old fashioned country store; Nazimova in "Billions"; William Duncan serial, "Fighting Fate"; Mutt and Jeff cartoon.

Casino—All-star cast in the Metro special, "Hearts Are Trumps"; Ford Weekly.

Strand—Zane Grey's "The U. P. Trail"; comedy, "Simple and Sweet."

"PASSION"

"Passion" is unquestionably one of the big photoplays of the decade, and it is big in every conceivable way; only a few of the leading triumphs of the screen being comparable to it. Next in importance is the fact that it brings to the silent stage a remarkably brilliant star, who is new to this country, Pola Negri, a Continental actress of the rarest charm and most pronounced ability quite all her own. It is said she is destined to become one of America's favorites of the first rank, because she displays what America admires, namely genius of a high order. Her portrayal of the character of a little French milliner who by dint of her willful capriciousness and ingratiating manners becomes the ruler of a king, is one of the outstanding histrionic achievements in the annals of the screen. It is doubtful whether any other artist could have matched her sterling performance before the motion picture camera in this particular. Those who witnessed her performance at the Rivoli theater last evening seemed a unit in enthusing over her and it is certain that if she had been present in person she would have been vociferously acclaimed.

"Passion" continues as the attraction at the Rivoli theater and it should break some local records ere the conclusion of its engagement.

BILLIE BURKE HERE

Billie Burke, the beautiful Paramount star, who will be seen in her latest starring vehicle, "The Education of Elizabeth" at the Majestic theater today, is admirably supported by a company of picked players, all of whom present adequate screen portraits. Don Cameron, the leading man, is a well known actor who appeared in "East is West," and has a fine screen record. Lumsden Hare and Frederic's Burton are experienced players who have strong roles in support of Miss Burke. Others in the cast include Harold Foshay, Edith Shayne, Helen Dahl, Kay MacClassland and Frank Goldsmith. The author is Roy Horniman, Elmer Harris made the adaptation and Edward Dillon was the director.

McQuay and Hazelton, pretty misses in song and dance; Van and Yorke, a nifty couple in comedy singing talking and dancing, are on the same program with "The Education of Elizabeth" at the Majestic for today, Friday and Saturday.

COUNTRY STORE, PICTURES RIVIERA PROGRAM TONIGHT

Ye old-fashioned country store will be the feature f the program at the Riviera tonight. A. J. Cooper, manager of the theater, has invited the North Side to the party that is designed to take a good, healthy wallop at the well-known high-cost-of-living as a truckload of groceries will be distributed among the audience. Besides the gift-giving there will be an entertaining song and musical program, given in connection with the country store feature. Nazimova in "Billions" is the big card in the pictures. This is one of the great actress's biggest screen successes. The William Duncan serial, "Fighting Fate" and a Mutt and Jeff cartoon complete the picture bill.

AMATEUR NIGHT ATTRACTS NEAR-MOB TO THE RIVIERA

Amateur night on Wednesday evening at the Riviera theater attracted the largest crowd that ever assembled at a North Side Theater to witness any kind of a performance. The theater "stood 'em out" for two shows. In fact the crowd was so great the amateur acts were repeated at the second performance in order to accommodate everybody. Florence Girard, a young dancer, easily walked off with first honors with her dancing act. Besides appearing in her regular turn on the program she "shimmied" for the audience while Anderson's jazz band orchestra was belting down the boards. The jazz band won second prize. They captivated the house with their Hawaiian selections. Third prize went to little Ralph McKinzie, airweight wrestling champion of the north side. Ralph challenged all comers. His defi was taken up by a youngster from the audience. In two seconds Ralph had clamped a "Stranglet" Lewis head hold on his opponent and it was only a matter of a few minutes before he was flat on the floor.

"HEARTS ARE TRUMP"—CASINO

Members of the all-star cast in Metro's enthralling picturization of Cecil Raleigh's successful melodrama, "Hearts Are Trumps," at the Casino today and tomorrow had a regular Cook's tour in filming the picture.

For one scene the famous mission of San Juan Capistrano in Southern California was utilized and the cast had no sooner returned to the Metro lot at Hollywood, Calif., than they were hustled up to the snow-clad mountains of the Sierras to take the scenes in the Swiss Alps. As a result of this strenuous treatment some were nursing bad cases of sunburn while others were being doctored for frostbite.

"U. P. TRAIL"—STRAND

Who has ever seen a professional gambler on the screen who is not the villain, or the villain's assistant, or some minor villain engaged in something low and mean and generally not done in the upper circles? Probably there have been a few, long ago, but in Benjamin B. Hampton's powerful motion picture version of Zane Grey's novel, "The U. P. Trail," at the Strand today "Three Hough" of the story is a gambler who comes near landing in the hero class. Joseph J. Dowling, the famous character actor, gives the story character a powerful screen delineation.

"DARDANELLA"

"Dardanella," the McGregor Company's carnival of fun and beauty will be at the La Crosse Theater Friday night. It is a wonder show—setting a pace that keeps it well in the lead in the Musical Comedy Handicap. Its principal charm is its exquisite chorus of youth and beauty arrayed in gorgeous creations and "peppy" novelties. It's a zippy aggregation of stage baby vamps who can warble and dance with a zest that is a real joy to visualize.

"Dardanella" is described as "a glorious feast of revelry and joy with a giggle, a laugh or a scream every minute."

MICHIGAN DRY LAW DECLARED ILLEGAL BY STATE COURT

Enforcement of Prohibition in Hands of Federal Agents as Result of Ruling

LANSING, Mich.—Enforcement of the prohibition laws in Michigan was entirely in the hands of federal officers Thursday and "dry" leaders in the legislature, together with Governor Groesbeck and Attorney General Wiley were framing a new state "dry" law to replace the Wiley act, which was virtually nullified by a supreme court decision here Wednesday.

The effect of the supreme court's ruling in the opinion of officials here, was to declare unconstitutional the search and seizure provision of the Wiley act, by reversing a circuit court case in which a defendant was convicted of illegally transporting liquor into the state. The high court held that to prevent interstate traffic in liquor was a duty of federal officers and that such cases could not be taken under jurisdiction by state authorities.

SPARTA MOONSHINE MAKER SENTENCED TO THREE MONTHS

Sheriff Seizes Mash and Still in Raid on Man's Home

DR. HILL, PIONEER DOCTOR OF KENDALL, IS DEAD

Charged With Deserting Family Sparta Man Arrested in Chicago

TOMAH, Wis.—Word has been received in this city of the arrest of Willem M. Wolf of Sparta, by Sheriff Charles Torrance, who caught Wolf in the act of making moonshine. Three quarts of whiskey and a quantity of mash were confiscated by the officer and Wolf's equipment for making liquor consisting of a five-gallon oil can with coil attachment were removed from Wolf's home. Judge Richards sentenced Wolf to three months in jail at hard labor.

Dr. G. R. Hill, veteran Monroe county physician, died at his home in Kendall on March 24, at the age of 70 years. Deceased came to Kendall exactly a half century ago, and has served his community as physician, banker and school board member. Dr. Hill is survived by his widow and three daughters: Mrs. Harry Smith, the Misses Georgia and Avis Hill, all of Kendall.

The undersheriff of Monroe county, by clever detective work and without the assistance of the Chicago police force, took into custody and brought back to Sparta William Kewin for abandoning his family consisting of a wife and several children. Mrs. Kewin had refused to put her children in the Home for Dependent Children, and had tried to support them by scrubbing, washing and renting rooms in her little home. The mother's devotion to her young family, which included a babe in arms, roused the interest of the authorities and he is awaiting trial in the county court.

The third annual road school for Monroe county was held in Sparta under the direction of County Highway Commissioner Millard, and was a most instructive and get-together event. The purpose of the school was to foster a constructive program that will assist in giving to the county better highways and a finer morale among patrolmen. After the program, a banquet was held at which Prof. Norgord of Wisconsin university made the principal address.

MRS. DECKER AND 3 SONS INDICTED FOR MURDER OF LOVETT

WARSAW, Ind.—Virgil Decker, his mother, Mrs. Lydia Decker, and two brothers, Fred and Cal Decker, were indicted by the Kosciusko county grand jury, which completed its investigation Wednesday into the death of Leroy Lovett. Virgil Decker has been held in jail here on a charge of murder. His relatives were arrested Thursday and brought to the jail here.

Fred and Calvin Decker were arrested at Fred Decker's home near Atwood, Ind.; Mrs. Decker was arrested at Elkhart, Ind., Wednesday night. She will be brought here. The indictments carry two counts. One count charges that Lovett was murdered by an attack with a heavy iron bar, while the second count charges that the murder was committed with a deadly weapon unknown to the grand jury.

LOCAL COMPANY FIRST TO APPLY FOR DAM PERMIT

Wisconsin-Minnesota Light and Power Company Plan to Build on Chippewa River

The Wisconsin-Minnesota Light and Power company, in seeking a federal permit to build a dam on the Chippewa river, becomes the first Wisconsin corporation to apply to the government under the federal water power act. Ordinarily where no navigable streams or tribal lands are involved, the right to build a dam in Wisconsin is granted by the railroad commission.

The extraordinary circumstances requiring sanction of the federal water power commission arise in the fact that construction of a dam will cause the waters of Sawyer county to overflow 2058 acres of tribal lands in Sawyer county below the junction of the east and west forks of the river. Twenty homes and one church of the Indians on the Lac Court Oreilles reservation must be moved.

The state railroad commission is interested in seeing the project receive federal sanction, because the dam and the reservoir will be of direct benefit to the people of the Chippewa valley.

If the permit is granted, the Wisconsin-Minnesota Light and Power company will construct, at a cost of $700,000, the largest reservoir in the state, to be known as the Chippewa reservoir. Its storage capacity will be 12,000,000 cubic feet. This reservoir will store water during flood periods, and thus provide a constant and regulated flow for the eleven dams and dam sites further down the river. Three of the dams already in use are operated by the Cornell Wood Products company, Cornell; the Eau Claire Dells Improvement company, Eau Claire, and the Wisconsin-Minnesota Light and Power company, Wisota.

GOOD PRELIMINARIES ARE ALSO ANNOUNCED ON CARD

Bout to be Staged on North Side at Union Hall

Fans who have been setting up an agitation for a bout between George Melde and Young Sampson, two La Crosse grapplers, will at last realize on their long sought hope.

George Melde and Young Sampson have been signed up in a match for the lightweight title of the city. The match will be held at Union hall on the north side on Monday evening, April 18.

Sampson and Melde up until this time have never met in an official bout and while supporters of each feel confident that their man will win, the report of more reserved dopesters indicates that the battle on April 18 will be one of the best in the lightweight class ever seen on a local mat. Sampson is renewing his training following his return some time ago from a wrestling tour of several mid-western states, while Melde has been in training since several weeks before the official announcement of the bout was made.

The match on April 18 will mark the revival of the sport here after a continued period of marking time and the announcement of the grappling contest between these two men is greeted with enthusiasm among followers of this form of sport. It is also announced that several good preliminaries will appear on the wrestling card on this occasion.

Pete Herman knocked out Willie Spencer in the twelfth round at New York last night.

Jose Capablanca defeated Dr. Lasker in the fifth game of the world's chess championship at Havana last night. The other four games were draws.

After two victories over the San Francisco Coast league, the Chicago Cubs today tackle the Oakland club. A round of heavy hitting in the eighth gave the Cubs the game yesterday, 7 to 3.

The first real opposition faced by the White Sox on their training trip tour resulted in a 4 to 3 defeat yesterday at the hands of the Fort Worth team. Davenport, one of the best recruit prospects of the White Sox, walked seven men, three in the first inning, although his speed puzzled the home team, who got only six hits.

Claude Derrick, shortstop of the Toledo American association club, who recently announced he intended to retire at once from baseball, will join the club immediately, it was announced today.

Johnny Layton of Sedalia, three cushion billiard champion, was at Detroit today preparing for his match with Gus Copulos of Detroit beginning tomorrow.

Ty Cobb claims the distinction of working the first squeeze play of the season. It was made in the seventh inning of Wednesday's game at Ranger, Texas, between the Detroit Tigers and the Columbus American association club when Ty played the ball to the left of the pitcher's box and Flagstead scored.

Chief interest in today's play in the amateur three cushion billiard tournament centered in the match between Calderwood of Detroit and Brewer, Chicago. Calderwood had taken the lead yesterday and Brewer, by reason of two victories, moved from fourth place to a tie for second.

In an effort to discourage gambling Manager Speaker of the Cleveland Indians will not announce his pitchers over-night during the regular season.

"Goldie" Rapp, New York Giant star infielder who was ill in New Orleans, has joined the team at Mobile.

"Babe" Ruth is out of play with the Yankees, suffering from a sprained wrist. Frank Baker, former home run king, returned to regular work with the Yankees in the game with Shreveport yesterday and gathered a two-base blow in the eighth inning that put Mousel across with the winning run.

Mitchell

An Interesting Feature

on the Mitchell motor is the Thermostat. This is a small compact and reliable piece of mechanism placed between the cylinder block, and the radiator. Its duty is to produce efficiency quickly in a cold motor, thereby saving gasoline and increasing the life of the motor because of the short time it takes for a cold motor to "get under way." This is the way it operates: When the motor is started after standing for some length of time, the water commences to circulate, but around the cylinders only, not through the radiator, and when the water has attained a heat of 150 degrees, which it does in about four minutes the Thermostat automatically opens and water commences to circulate in the regular way through the radiator. This is an important feature which you should have on the car you select.

CAMBRIDGE CREW VICTORIOUS OVER OXFORD IN RACE

Three Rowers Collapse at Finish of Gruelling Pace; Win by a Length

LONDON.—Cambridge vindicated the prediction of rowing experts and won the annual boat race with Oxford today over the Putney-Mortlake course of about four and one-quarter miles on the Thames in 19:44. The Light Blue won after a desperate battle, in which it seemed either crew's pace until near the finish.

Three Rowers Collapse

So gruelling was the pace that F. B. Lothrop of Harvard and Trinity, at No. 4 for Oxford, who was the sole American among the competing oarsmen, together with H. O. Boret the Cambridge bow, and P. I. Coates, No. 3 for Oxford, collapsed at the finish.

At the end of the first mile Cambridge led by a length and a quarter. In the next mile, however, Oxford more than made up this handicap, and at the two mile mark was one third of a length ahead.

Oxford maintained this lead in the succeeding mile, and even increased the advantage to half a length.

Cambridge Regains Lead

At the end of four miles Cambridge had taken the lead by a quarter of a length. Cambridge went over the finish line a length in the lead.

An enormous crowd witnessed the event. The Prince of Wales, the Duke of York, and Prince Henry were on the umpires' boat.

HOREMANS RUNS 150 IN 18-1 CUE MATCH BEATS ALL RECORDS

NEW YORK.—By the overwhelming score of 400 to 38, Edouard Horemans, the Belgian champion, took the measure of Albert Cutler in the third block of their 18-1 balk line match Tuesday afternoon.

While compiling his 400 he broke the world's record for high in 18-1 billiards and also the record for average made in any single session. His high run was 150 and his average 57 1-7.

The previous record for high run in 18-1 competition was 140, established in 1897 by Frank Ives, who was playing the elder Jake Schaefer in a tournament match. Ives set the previous record for high average in this same match at 31 1-4.

BEN DEARMAN FINED IN BOAT THEFT CASE TO APPEAL DECISION

Ben Dearman, arraigned Wednesday afternoon before County Judge Brindley, on a charge of stealing a hunting boat, from Charles Philips and Frank Kalina, was found guilty and fined $15 and cost. Dearman filed notice of an appeal to the circuit court.

The boat in question is said to be the property of Frank Kalina of Winona. Kalina lent it to Philips to go turtle hunting along the Wisconsin side of the river, opposite Dakota. The freeze-up prevented Philips from returning to his home in the boat so he declares he left it with David DeColon. Dearman declared Philips told him he could have the boat and keep it for the winter. When Kalina learned that Dearman had the boat and was refused it when he sought to get it, a warrant was issued for Dearman's arrest.

MARKET REACTIONARY

Losses of From One to Three Points Recorded in Many Shares

NEW YORK—In the absence of more than moderate support and short covering, prices receded at Thursday's market session. Losses ranged from 1 to 3 points. Crucible, Mexican Petroleum, Houston Oil, General Asphalt, American Smelting preferred, Baldwin, American Car, American Sugar, American Woolen and Leathers and tobaccos comprised the more reactionary issues. Almost the sole exceptions to the downward trend were Atlantic Gulf and International Harvester, the latter rising 3½ points. Call loans opened at 6½ per cent against yesterday's deal rate of 7 per cent but time funds were firm and scarce.

Weakness prevailed at the opening of the stock market, leaders of the oil, steel, equipment and motor groups being among the first to give way to increased pressure. Prospects of lighter money rates encouraged the shorts to extend their commitments. Within the first half hour losses of one to three points were sustained by Mexican Petroleum, General Asphalt, Royal Dutch, Crucible, Baldwin, Studebaker and Kelly-Springfield. The reaction extended to rails, Union Pacific and Southern Pacific losing a point each.

WHEAT HITS BOTTOM

Quotations in May and July at Lowest Level of the Season

CHICAGO, Ill.—Wheat prices Thursday fell to the lowest level which has been touched this season by the May and July deliveries. Selling pressure was general, and buying only of a scattered sort. Prospects of a big yield of winter wheat had much to do with emphasizing bearish sentiment. Opening prices, which varied from 2½c decline to the advance with May $1.37½ to $1.38¾ and July $1.19¾ to $1.20 were followed by numerous fluctuations within the initial range.

Subsequently, word of export buying tended to rally the market. Prices closed unsettled 1¾c net lower to 1½c advance with May $1.38½ to $1.38¾ and July $1.19¾ to ¾.

Corn and oats paralleled the action of wheat and sold at a new low record price for the season. Corn opened ¼ to ⅜c to ⅝c off including May 60⅝ to 61c and later sagged a little more.

On the decline some strong interests turned to the buying side but rallies failed to last. The close was weak, ¾c to ⅞c net lower with May 60½ to ⅝ to 60⅝.

Oats displayed relatively greater weakness than corn starting ⅛ to ¼c down July 39½ to 40c and afterward descending rapidly.

Provisions were firm owing to higher quotations on hogs.

Will Your Fortune Live After You?

EXPERIENCE is the best teacher, but sometimes people without business training pay all too dearly for a course in this school. Using the collected and combined experience of successful men is the safe and economical method.

It is not strange that thinking people who have spent the greater part of their lives in accumulating property for the protection of their families are more and more selecting trust companies to manage their estates.

This company is especially organized and equipped for this work. Its resources, business judgment, wide experience, trained organization and continuous existence assure protection of the property left in its care.

Look for an advertisement entitled "Husbands, Wives and Wills," appearing in the March issues of the following magazines: Scribner's, Harper's, Atlantic Monthly, Century, Review of Reviews, World's Work, American, Cosmopolitan, System and the March 9th issue of The Outlook. You and your wife may read it with profit.

This Company has available for distribution copies of the booklet entitled "Safeguarding Your Family's Future," mentioned in the advertisement.

SIMPSON RESIGNS HIS FEDERAL POST TO PRACTICE LAW

Prohibition Chief Leaves for Milwaukee to Wind up His Official Work

J. Allen Simpson, the man who organized the federal prohibition enforcement service in the western district of Wisconsin, and chief of that service during the year of its existence, leaves the service this afternoon. He will practice law.

Mr. Simpson goes first to Milwaukee to wind up his connection with the internal revenue department.

Mr. Simpson joined the service on February 1, 1920, when the whole state was handled from the Milwaukee office. He organized the western district service and took charge of the Madison office on April 1. Simpson is well known in La Crosse, having spent several weeks here during the recent session of United States court.

The agents under Mr. Simpson have averaged a raid a day since the formation of the squad.

George Ihrig will be temporarily in charge of the western Wisconsin service.

LOCOMOTIVE CRANE ATTRACTS A CROWD ON NORTH SIDE

A locomotive crane, belonging to the C. M. & St. P. Railway, attracted as large a crowd of our north side people as any modern movie. The crane was doing a bit of emergency ditching between camp 21 and the Mill street crossing.

The interesting part seemed to be the almost human actions of the machine as it hoisted, swung and carried its load all at one time. Engineer Sima was the operator of the levers.

Public Debate

FOOD AND NO FOOD

Editor, La Crosse Tribune and Leader-Press.

Dear Sir: Your editorial in Sunday's issue under the above caption ably represents the one absent link in the chain to reach the needs of the starving millions in China.

"The starving cannot be brought to the food. The food must be taken to them."

Yes! But why call upon an already mind-worked, generous people for more "dimes and dollars" when this nation has a great navy, most of which is at present without practical service, although equipped and manned at the expense of the same generous people, a fourth of which navy could in brief time carry all surplus corn to the starving Chinese?

No great navy display ever met the gaze of an admiring world to compare with that of a fleet of a dozen American ships, laden with corn, donated by the farmers of America, conveying, not destruction and death, but salvation and life, to millions of the starving people of a far off foreign nation.

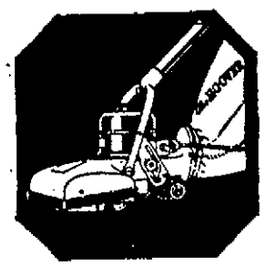

Such a procession would eclipse in splendor all other acts as a world object lesson—a spectacle to kings, emperors and potentates,—a new glory for our flag—a new theme for poets—a new song for angels—a herald of "peace on earth, good will to all men."

THE POLITICAL FORUM

VERCHOTA AND MILK STATION

Dear Editor:

The Voting Booth Milk Stations is going to be an issue in this spring election campaign. Especially in the Third Ward where the first station was started in the city.

The records of the City Council show that Alderman Verchota, the alderman from the Third Ward, made a fight on the council floor that forced the Grounds and Building Committee to retire and go into executive session, and come back that same evening and report favorable for the use of the voting booths as milk stations. The Grounds and Building Committee reported unfavorable, but Alderman Verchota took the floor and convinced the majority that the voting booth milk stations were a good thing for the people. Hence we have the Voting Booth Milk Stations today.

Now Alderman Verchota has shown us that he has leadership. He has shown us that he is a good alderman for the Third Ward, and a good councilman for all the city. Without Alderman Verchota the fight would not have been made for the Milk Stations. We want to keep them, and Alderman Verchota will see that they are not taken away without a fight. He is for the Milk Stations and we know that he is.

He will keep the Milk Station in our Ward and will fight to see that they are kept in all the other wards. Let's support that kind of an alderman that really does things for the people.

Signed, S. SECOR
315 Jackson street.

"NO MOLLYCODDLE"

Milwaukee, Wis., March 29, 1921.

Editor of The Tribune:

Dear Sir: Was very glad to hear that my old friend and comrade, Col. F. H. Fowler, had offered himself as a candidate for mayor at the coming election. The "old home town" sure is fortunate in having a man of Col. Fowler's caliber as a mayoralty possibility. Have known Fowler personally for close onto twenty-seven years, and want to say that should the voters do the right thing and elect him mayor at this time they will never regret it.

His is a 100 per cent efficiency. Your interests will be his and vice versa. His "pep" and tenacity of purpose will get you away from the RUTTISM that has been so prevalent in La Crosse for some time. Also let me state here there is nothing of the mollycoddle in his make-up. He will make as good a mayor as he has a soldier or teacher, and I guess that going some.

So come on, you boosters, GET BUSY. Here's to Fowler for mayor.

Respectfully, J. E. SWAN.

Voting Information

To vote for a man, put an "X" after his name on the ballot.

Even if you have failed to register, you may vote at the election April 5 by presenting the sworn statement of two freeholders that they know you to be a qualified resident of your ward. So if you have not registered, be prepared to vote anyhow. There will be freeholders at the voting booths ready and willing to swear you in.

If you will be out of the city on election day, vote now. Make application to the city clerk for a ballot. After you have marked it, he will seal it and send it to your ward to be counted with the regular votes.

If you are now out of the city, send your affidavit to the city clerk stating that you are a resident of your ward and a qualified elector therein, giving your name and address, and ask him to send you a ballot. The marked ballot must reach the clerk's hands the day before election to be counted.

If you are ill and unable to go to the polls, make application at once for your ballot to the city clerk, mark it and send it back to him. Or the election officers of your ward may call at your home for your ballot.

REMEMBER—YOU CAN VOTE EVEN IF NOT REGISTERED BY "SWEARING IN" YOUR BALLOT ON ELECTION DAY.

Gasoline Substitutes

In addition to natalite, which is manufactured in Natal from the refuse of the cane sugar mills and used extensively in propelling motor cars in South Africa, there has recently been produced another motor fuel to meet the shortage and high cost of gasoline in this country. The basis of this new fuel, which is called "acetol," is alcohol and ether, which comprises 90 per cent. The other ingredients are treated as a secret until the patentee receives his patent rights.

AMERICAN LEGION MEETING CALLED FRIDAY EVENING

Another rousing meeting of the American Legion will be held at the Chamber of Commerce on Friday night, April 1.

Fun, sport, joy and amusement all for the price of a discharge button worn in a conspicuous place is the promise of the entertainment committee for Friday night's get-together.

Buddy is requested to escort a lady friend to the meeting Friday night and help to make it one of the best ever held by the American Legion to date. Besides other numbers planned for the evening's entertainment, a jazz orchestra has been engaged to furnish music throughout the evening.

WINONA MAN IS DROWNED IN RIVER

Clyde Woodward, an employe of the W. A. Hodgins Transfer company residing at 217 West Tenth street, in Winona, aged about 35, was accidentally drowned at 2:10 p. m. Wednesday when he fell from a barge tied up at the levee near the foot of Center avenue, into the icy waters of the Mississippi river.

Mr. Woodward was engaged in unloading cordwood from the barge on to wagons when the accident occurred. The light rain Wednesday had made the floor of the barge exceedingly slippery and it is believed by fellow workmen that in tugging at a stick of wood near the edge of the barge, Woodward's foot slipped and he was thrown into the water.

Archer Fish Shoot Their Prey

One of the most curious groups of tropical fishes are the "archers" of Polynesia and the East Indian archipelago. This singular fish has the habit of "shooting" its prey. It feeds on insects which frequent the vegetable growths along the edge of the streams and espying its intended victim, the finny hunter swims up as near as possible and then projects a tiny stream of water with unerring aim which generally brings the food morsel to the water, where it is quickly dispatched.

INGROWN TOE NAIL TURNS OUT ITSELF

A few drops of "Outgro" upon the skin surrounding the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

"Outgro" is a harmless, antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

REVIVAL MEETINGS AT VIROQUA ATTRACT BIG CROWDS NIGHTLY

VIROQUA, Wis.—Large and enthusiastic crowds are attending the evangelistic meetings which are being conducted at the Methodist church by Omer L. Cotterell of Chicago and his singer, Mr. Troy. The meetings began on Tuesday, March 22, and will continue for three weeks. On Sunday Mr. Cotterell addressed the commandery body. A chorus of fifty voices assist in the singing each evening.

At the Christian church in this city a revival meeting is also being held with W. J. Carry of Minneapolis as evangelist. The singing is in charge of the local Christian church pastor, Rev. J. Harry Bullock. These meetings are also well attended.

The Viroqua park board has voted to establish an auto tourist camp in this city and a brick building will be erected just west of the ball diamond at the Eehkardt park, where water and other conveniences will be installed. The board has also selected Mayor Roseland as manager of the city board.

ESSEX

Consider Its Price

Compare It With Others When You Measure Their Quality With Essex

Men no longer accept the doctrine that higher priced cars mean correspondingly finer cars.

Of special interest is a price to price measurement of the Essex against cars you have always judged in its quality class. Its advantage shows surprising margins when viewed thus.

Will you find any car of comparable quality and ability within hundreds of dollars of the Essex class?

And doesn't its low cost with such quality, appeal to judicious buyers, whether they are considering a car slightly less in cost, or have been seeking Essex quality in some much costlier car?
